INTRODUCTION

The Testament of Solomon is, essentially, a folk tale about Solomon building the Temple of Jerusalem, combined with ancient lore about demonology, angelology, astrology, medicine, and magic arts. As the product of long tradition, the work represents not only its own period of composition but the period of the Second Jewish Commonwealth and the rise of early Christianity.

The Testament of Solomon has much in common with other apocryphal and pseudepigraphal works, such as the episode of 5:7–10 (cf. Tb 3:8ff) and the names and deeds of the angels in 1En 6–7.

The Greek text here presented is that of C.C. McGown,[§] which is based on 14 MSS, and the English text is (for the most part) loosely based on F.C. Conybeare's translation[‡] (who used only a single MS), with numerous adjustments made, using (among others), sources such as M.R. James' 1913 'summary'[¶] and the more recent translation by D.C. Duling[□] – whence we have taken some interesting footnotes, here presented in green text. We also add some notes from, and comparisons with, M. Whittaker's 1984 translation[▽].

AUTHORSHIP AND DATES

The Testament of Solomon was almost certainly written in Greek – there is no indication of a Hebrew or Aramaic original. It was most likely written by a Greek-speaking Christian or, if by a Jew, then later edited (extensively) by a Christian. The place of its origin is debated, with suggestions including Babylonia, Asia Minor, and Egypt. The language and style of the (Koine) Greek are similar to those of the New Testament.

The date of composition is difficult to determine but, because of clear references to the work made in the early 5th Century, we can date it no later than 400 CE.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 1

^t Blessed are you, O Lord God, who gave Solomon such authority. Glory to you and might unto the ages. Amen.

³ And I, Solomon, one day questioned the child, saying, “Do I not love you more than all the artisans who are working in the Temple of God? Do I not give you double wages and a double supply of food? How is it that day by day and hour by hour you grow thinner?” ⁴ But the child answered me, “I pray, O king. Listen to what has befallen all that your child has. After

^t Preceding this ‘title verse’, Conybeare has a prologue (as a separate ‘chapter’, with the heading, “Greek Title”): Testament of Solomon, son of David, who was king in Jerusalem, and mastered and controlled all spirits of the air, on the earth, and under the earth. By means of them also he wrought all the transcendent works of the Temple. Telling also of the authorities they wield against men, and by what angels these demons are brought to naught.

¹ James rephrases vv. 1–2: When I was engaged upon the building of the temple in Jerusalem, there was a lad, the son of the foreman of the builders, of whom I took notice, for he was a clever workman. Indeed, so skilful was he that I increased his wages and his allowance of food above the rest. Yet in spite of that, as I saw him by day, I noticed that he was becoming thin and weak and pale.

² For the last sentence, Conybeare reads, “And the child grew thin, although he was very much loved by the king.” The exact meaning of πρωτομαῖστορος (‘master builder’) is unknown; Whittaker has ‘overseer’.

³ Conybeare opens, “So King Solomon called the boy.”

⁴ Conybeare opens, “But the child said to the king” (cf. #3).

τοῦ ναοῦ τοῦ θεοῦ μετὰ ἡλίου δυσμὰς ἐν τῷ ἀναπαύεσθαί με, ἔρχεται πονηρὸν δαιμόνιον καὶ ἀφαιρεῖ ἀπ' ἐμοῦ τὸ ἥμισυ τοῦ μισθοῦ μου καὶ τὸ ἥμισυ τῶν σιτίων μου, καὶ λαμβάνει μου τὴν δεξιὰν χεῖρα καὶ θηλάζει μου τὸν ἀντίχειρον. καὶ ἰδοὺ θλιβομένης μου τῆς ψυχῆς τὸ σῶμα μου λεπτύνεται καθ' ἐκάστην ἡμέραν.

we are all released from our work on the Temple of God, after sunset, when I lie down to rest, one of the evil demons comes and takes away from me one half of my pay and one half of my food. Then he also takes hold of my right hand and sucks my thumb. And lo, my soul is oppressed, and so my body waxes thinner every day.”

⁵ Now, on hearing this, I, King Solomon, entered the Temple of God, and prayed with all my soul, night and day, that the demon might be delivered into my hands, and that I might gain power over him. ⁶ And it came about through my prayer that there was given to me from the Lord Sabaoth by Michael his archangel, a little ring, having a seal consisting of an engraved stone, ⁷ and he said to me, “Take, O Solomon, son of David, the gift that the Lord God has sent you, the highest Sabaoth. With it, you shall lock up all demons of the earth, male and female; and, with their help, you shall build up Jerusalem, while you bear this seal of God.”

⁸ And, filled with great joy, I praised and glorified the God of heaven and earth; and, the next day, I told the child to come to me and I gave the seal to him, ⁹ and said to him, “Take this and,

⁶ In place of ‘there was given’, Conybeare has ‘grace was given’, who then starts a new sentence after ‘archangel’ with (in brackets) ‘He brought me’.

⁸ For this verse, Conybeare reads: And I Solomon was overjoyed, and praised and glorified the God of heaven and earth. And, on the morrow, I called the boy and gave him the ring.

αὐτῷ· Ἐν ᾗ ἂν ὥρα ἐπιστῇ σοι τὸ δαιμόνιον ῥίψον τὸ δακτυλίδιον τοῦτο εἰς τὸ στήθος τοῦ δαίμονος λέγων αὐτῷ· Δεῦρο καλεῖ σε ὁ Σολομῶν, καὶ δρομαίως παραγίνου πρὸς με μηδὲν λογισάμενος ὧν μέλλει σοι φοβῆσαι.

¹⁰ καὶ ἰδοὺ κατὰ τὴν εἰθισμένην ὥραν ἦλθεν ὁ Ὀρνίας τὸ χαλεπὸν δαιμόνιον ὡς πῦρ φλεγόμενον ὥστε λαβεῖν κατὰ τὸ συνῆθες τὸν μισθὸν τοῦ παιδαρίου. ¹¹ τὸ δὲ παιδάριον κατὰ τὸ ῥηθὲν αὐτῷ παρὰ τοῦ Σολομῶντος ἔρριψε τὸ δακτυλίδιον ἐπὶ τὸ στήθος τοῦ δαίμονος, λέγων αὐτῷ· Δεῦρο καλεῖ σε ὁ Σολομῶν, καὶ ἀπῆει δρομαίως πρὸς τὸν Σολομῶντα. ¹² ὁ δὲ δαίμων ἐκραύγασε, λέγων τῷ παιδαρίῳ· Τί τοῦτο ἐποίησας; λάβε τὸ δακτυλίδιον καὶ ἐπίδος αὐτὸ πρὸς Σολομῶντα, καὶ γὰρ σοι δώσω τὸ ἀργύριον καὶ τὸ χρυσίον πάσης τῆς γῆς· μόνον μὴ με ἀπαγάγῃς πρὸς Σολομῶντα.

¹³ καὶ εἶπεν αὐτῷ τὸ παιδάριον· Ζῇ κύριος ὁ θεὸς τοῦ Ἰσραὴλ, οὐ μὴ σε ἀνέξομαι ἐὰν μὴ ἀπαγάγω σε πρὸς Σολομῶντα. ¹⁴ καὶ ἦλθε τὸ παιδάριον καὶ εἶπε τῷ Σολομῶντι· Βασιλεῦ Σολομῶν, ἤγαγόν σοι τὸν δαίμονα καθὼς ἐνετείλω μοι, καὶ ἰδοὺ στήκει πρὸ τῶν πυλῶν ἔξω δεδεμένος καὶ κράζων μεγάλη τῇ φωνῇ διδόναι μοι τὸ ἀργύριον καὶ τὸ χρυσίον πάσης τῆς γῆς τοῦ μὴ με ἀπαγαγεῖν αὐτὸν πρὸς σέ.

at the hour the demon comes to you, throw this ring at the demon's chest and say to him, "Come, Solomon calls you hither." Then hasten to me, without fearing anything you may hear on the part of the demon."

¹⁰ And behold, the child took the ring and went off; and, at the customary hour Ornias, the fierce demon, came like a burning fire to take the pay from the child, as was his habit.

¹¹ But the child, according to Solomon's instructions, threw the ring at the chest of the demon, and said, "Solomon calls you hither." And then he went off at a run to Solomon. ¹² But the demon cried out aloud, saying, "Child, why have you done this to me? Take the ring off me, and I will give you the silver and gold of the whole earth. Only do not lead me away to Solomon."

¹³ But the child said to the demon, "As the Lord God of Israel lives, I will not let you go until I bring you to Solomon." ¹⁴ And the child came and said to Solomon, "King Solomon, I have brought the demon, as you commanded me. And behold, he stands before the gates, crying out, and supplicating with a loud voice, offering me the silver and gold of the earth if I do not bring him to you."

¹⁰ Conybeare lacks 'as was his habit'.

¹¹ In place of 'to Solomon', Conybeare ends with 'to the king'.

¹² Conybeare lacks 'silver and' (but cf. v. 14).

¹³ Conybeare ends the verse: I will not brook you. So come hither.

¹⁴ After 'gates', Conybeare adds 'of the court of your palace'. In place of 'silver and gold', James has 'hidden treasures'.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 2

¹ And, when I, Solomon, heard this, I rose up from my throne and saw the demon, shuddering and trembling. And I said to him, "Who are you?" And the demon answered, "I am called Ornias." ² And I said to him, "Tell me, O demon, to what zodiacal sign are you subject." And he answered, "To the Water-Pourer. And, those who have desire for women whose sign is the Virgin, I strangle." ³ But, in case there is no disposition to sleep, I am changed into three forms. Whenever men come to be enamoured of women, I metamorphose myself into a pre-pubescent female; and I take hold of the men in their sleep and touch them, and they suffer great pain. And, after a while, I again take to my wings and fly to the heavenly regions. I also appear as a lion. ⁴ I am a descendant of the archangel of the power of God, but I am rendered powerless by Uriel the archangel." ⁵ I Solomon, having heard the name of the archangel, prayed and glorified God, the Lord of heaven and earth. And I sealed the demon and set him to work at stone-cutting, so that he might cut the stones in the Temple, which,

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 2

² Conybeare opens, 'And Solomon said to him'. Here, 'the Virgin' refers to the Zodiacal sign.

⁴ Conybeare reads: and I am commanded by all the demons. I am offspring of the archangel Uriel, the power of God.

⁵ The Babylonian Talmud (b. Gitṭ 68ab) tells the story that Solomon sought the coveted stone-cutting worm to help build the Temple; after binding a male and a female demon, Solomon sent Benaiahu to get the worm from the Prince of Demons; to bind him, Benaiahu was given, among other things, a chain and a ring, each engraved with the Divine Name.

lying along the shore, had been brought by the Sea of Arabia. ⁶ But he, fearful of the iron, continued and said to me, “I pray, King Solomon, let me go free, and I will bring you all the demons.” ⁷ And, as he was not willing to be subject to me, I prayed the archangel Uriel to come and help me; and I immediately saw the archangel Uriel coming down to me from heaven. ⁸ And the angel ordered sea monsters to come out of the abyss and he cast his destiny on the ground, and subjected the great demon and bold Ornias to cut stones for the Temple that I, Solomon, was building. ⁹ And, accordingly, I glorified the God of heaven and Maker of the earth. And he commanded Ornias to come with his destiny, and he gave him the seal, saying, “Away with you, and bring me hither the prince of all the demons.”

⁶ Conybeare notes the tradition in folklore that the evil demons fear iron. In place of ‘the iron’, Whittaker has ‘the cutting tools’.

⁷ In place of ‘heaven’ (οὐρανοῦ), Conybeare ends with ‘the heavens’.

⁸ Conybeare lacks ‘that I, Solomon, was building’.

⁹ The precise meaning of the word translated ‘destiny’ (here and in v. 8) is not clear.

¹ So, Ornias took the finger-ring, and went off to Beelzeboul, and he said to him, "Come! Solomon calls you." ² But Beelzeboul said to him, "Tell me, who is this Solomon of whom you speak?" ³ Then Ornias threw the ring at the chest of Beelzeboul, saying, "Solomon the king calls you." ⁴ But Beelzeboul cried aloud with a mighty voice, and shot out a great burning flame of fire; and he arose, and followed Ornias, and came to me. ⁵ And, when I saw the prince of demons, I glorified the Lord God, Maker of heaven and earth, and I said, "Blessed are you, Lord God Almighty, who has given to Solomon your servant wisdom, the attendant of your thrones, and has subjected to me all the power of the demons." ⁶ And I questioned him, and said, "Who are you?" The demon replied, "I am Beelzebub, the prince of all the demons." ⁷ I demanded that, without interruption, he should remain close by my side

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 3

¹ After 'Beelzeboul', Conybeare adds 'who has kingship over the demons'.

² Conybeare here adds 'having heard' after 'Beelzeboul'.

³ Cf. 1:9, 11.

⁴ In place of 'to me', Conybeare ends the verse with 'to Solomon' (cf. #2:1).

⁵ The phrase, τῶν σῶν θρόνων πάρεδρον σοφίαν, 'wisdom, the attendant of your thrones', occurs in Ws 9:4; it is the tradition of Solomon's wisdom that led to the belief in his power over the demons.

⁶ Conybeare has 'exarch' in place of 'prince'.

⁷ For this verse, Conybeare (initially continuing Beelzebub's reply) reads: "... And all the demons have their chief seats close to me. And I it is who make manifest the apparition of each demon." And he promised to bring to me in bonds all the unclean spirits. And I again glorified the God of heaven and earth, as I do always give thanks to him.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 4

¹ I asked the demon if there were female demons. When he said there were, I wanted to know. ² So, Beelzeboul went off at high speed, and brought to me Onoskelis, that had a very pretty shape, and the skin of a fair-hued woman but the legs of a mule. ³ And, when she came to me, I said to her, "Tell me who you are." ⁴ And she said, "I am called Onoskelis, an embodied spirit dwelling on earth; I make my home in caves and I have a many-sided nature. ⁵ At times, I strangle men and, at others, I lead them astray from their natural path; my most frequent dwelling places are cliffs, caves, and ravines. ⁶ Oftentimes, however, I consort with men in the semblance of a woman, and above all with those of honey-coloured skin. For, they share my Star with me; since they it is who privately or openly worship my Star, without knowing that they harm themselves, and but whet my appetite for further mischief. ⁷ For, they wish to provide gold by means of commemoration, but I grant little to those who worship me seriously."

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 4

- ¹ Duling ends the verse, "When he replied that there were, (I said that) I wanted to see (one)."
- ² In place of 'but the legs of a mule', Conybeare ends with 'and she tossed her head'. The name, 'Onoskelis', could be translated 'Donkey Shanks'; she was a well-known Hellenistic demon.
- ³ Conybeare presents Solomon's 'command' as a question.
- ⁴ For this verse, Conybeare reads: But she said to me, "I am called Onoskelis, a spirit wrought ... [Shabtai/Saturn?], lurking on the earth. There is a golden cave where I lie. But I have a place that ever shifts." Here, we loosely follow Duling.
- ⁵ For 'most frequent dwelling places', Duling has just 'habitats'.
- ⁶ Apparently, Onoskelis is referring to the constellation Capricorn, the Goat. The ancients identified Capricorn with the god Pan, the god of forests and fields. Pan had goats' horns and hoofs, was a musician who played the pipes, and was always falling in love with the nymphs.
- ⁷ Conybeare has 'money' in place of 'gold'.

⁸ I asked her about her birth and she replied, "I was born of a voice untimely, the so-called echo of a black heaven." ⁹ And I said to her, "Under what star do you pass?" And she answered me, "Under the star of the full moon, because the moon travels over most things." ¹⁰ Then I said to her, "And what angel is it that frustrates you?" And she said to me, "He that is within you, O king." ¹¹ And I thought she mocked me and told a soldier to strike her. But she cried aloud, and said, "I am subjected to you, O king, by the wisdom of God." ¹² And I spoke the name of the Holy One of Israel and ordered her to spin the hemp for the ropes used in the work of the Temple of God; and, having been sealed and bound in this manner, she was set to the task of spinning the hemp night and day.

⁹ In place of the 1st instance of 'star', Duling has 'heavenly body'.

¹⁰ Conybeare lacks 'O king'.

¹¹ At the end of this verse, Conybeare adds 'given to you, and by the angel Joel'.

¹² For this verse, Conybeare reads: So, I commanded her to spin the hemp for the ropes used in the building of the house of God; and, accordingly, when I had sealed and bound her, she was so overcome and brought to naught as to stand night and day spinning the hemp.

¹ And I at once bade another demon to be led to me; and he brought me the demon Asmodeus, bound, ² and I asked him, "Who are you?" But he gave me an angry look and said, "And who are you?" ³ And I said to him, "So punished, will you answer me?" But he looked and said to me, "How can I answer you? You are a son of man and I of an angel, by a daughter of man, so no arrogant word of our heavenly kind can be addressed to the earth-born. ⁴ So, my star is bright in heaven, and some men call it the Wain, and some the dragon's child. And smaller stars accompany my star, since my father's rank and throne remain in the heavens to this day. ⁵ So, do not ask me too much, Solomon; for, your kingdom is to be disrupted in time, and your glory is temporary. And short will be your tyranny over us; and then we shall again mingle with men, so they shall revere us as if we were gods, not knowing, being men, the names of the angels set over us." ⁶ And I, Solomon, on hearing this, bound him more securely, and ordered him to

- ¹ In the Book of Tobit (Tb 3:8, 17), Asmodeus is the evil demon who slays the seven husbands of Sarah before the marriages are consummated.
- ² In place of 'an angry look', Conybeare has 'a glance of anger and rage'.
- ³ This comment is apparently based on the common Jewish interpretation of Gn 6:1-4 – that the angels fell when they lusted after beautiful human women and produced children who were giants.
- ⁴ In place of 'the Wain', Duling has 'the Great Bear' – the constellation known by some as the Plough (or Big Dipper) is clearly intended. Conybeare has 'I keep near this star' in place of 'And smaller stars accompany my star, since my father's rank and throne remain in the heavens to this day'.
- ⁵ Here, 'mingle' translates νομὴν ἔχωμεν – literally 'have pasture'. Conybeare lacks the name, 'Solomon', in this verse.
- ⁶ After 'flogged', Conybeare adds 'with thongs of ox-hide'.

I have committed murder for a group of three waves and up to seven.” ⁹ And I adjured him by the name of the Lord Sabaoth, saying, “Fear God, Asmodeus, and tell me by what angel you are frustrated.” The demon replied, “By Raphael, the one who stands before God. But the liver and gall of a fish put me to flight, when they are burned over glowing coals.” ¹⁰ I again asked him, and said, “Hide nothing from me. For, I am Solomon, son of David. Tell me the name of the fish that you revere.” And he answered, “It is called the sheatfish by name, and it is found in the rivers of Assyria; I also roam about in those parts.” ¹¹ And I said to him, “Have you nothing else about you, Asmodeus?” And he answered, “The power of God knows, which has bound me with the indissoluble bonds of yonder one’s seal, that whatever I have told you is true. But I beseech you, King Solomon, do not condemn me to [go into]

⁷ Conybeare opens the demon’s reply with, “I am called Asmodeus among mortals.”

⁸ The translation of the last sentence (following a footnote by Duling) is uncertain; the Greek text (εἰς τρικυμίας καὶ ἕως ἑπτὰ ἐφόνευσα) may be corrupt. The BN Gr. 500 manuscript ends at this point.

⁹ In place of ‘burned over glowing coals’, Conybeare has ‘smoked over ashes of the tamarisk’.

¹⁰ After ‘David’, Conybeare adds ‘King of Israel’.

¹¹ Demons often prefer desert regions (cf. Mk 1:12ff); Jesus condemns the Gerasene demoniacs to the swine, who then stampede down the cliff into the sea (cf. Mk 5:13).

But you shall also make the clay for the entire construction of the Temple, thus eliminating the cost of the labour.” And I ordered them to give him ten water jars to carry water in. And the demon groaned terribly and did the work I ordered him to do. And this I did, because that fierce demon Asmodeus possessed the gift of foreknowledge. ¹³ And I, Solomon, glorified God, who gave wisdom to me, Solomon, his servant. And I burned the fish liver and gall, together with a fragment of white storax, to subdue Asmodeus, because of his being so strong, and his voiced was silenced and he was filled with bitter pain.

¹² In place of ‘thus eliminating the cost of the labour’, Conybeare has ‘treading it down with your feet’.

¹³ Storax is a fragrant balsam obtained from the bark of an Asiatic tree (Liquidambar orientalis) of the witch-hazel family that was used as incense, an ingredient of perfume, or a respiratory decongestant.

¹ And I summoned again to stand before me Beelzeboul, and when he was seated, I decided to ask him, "Why are you alone, prince of the demons?" ² And he said to me, "Because I alone am left of the heavenly angels. For, I was the first angel in heaven, being called Beelzeboul. ³ And with me is another godless one, whom God cast down; now confined here, he holds my kindred in the bonds of Tartarus and is nurtured in the Red Sea – he who, when he is ready, shall come in triumph. ⁴ And I said to him, "What are your activities?" And he said to me, "I bring about destruction through tyrants, and I cause men to worship demons, and I incite the holy ones and the chosen priests to lust. I also stir up envy and murder in cities, and I instigate wars." ⁵ So, I said to him, "Bring to me the one you said is being nurtured in the Red Sea." But he said to me, "I will bring no one to you. But there shall come to me another demon called Ehippas, who will bind him and bring him up

² Another reading for 'first angel' is 'highest-ranking angel' (as Duling).

⁴ For this verse, Conybeare, following a different MS, reads: I Solomon said unto him, "Beelzeboul, what is your employment?" And he answered me, "I destroy kings. I ally myself with foreign tyrants. And my own demons I set on to men, in order that the latter may believe in them and be lost. And the chosen servants of God, priests and faithful men, I excite unto desires for wicked sins, and evil heresies, and lawless deeds; and they obey me, and I bear them on to destruction. And I inspire men with envy, and [desire for] murder, and for wars and sodomy, and other evil things. And I will destroy the world."

However, he will come to you, seeing me here.” ⁷ And I said to him, “Tell me, in which star do you dwell?” And he said, “The one that is called Hesperia by men.”

⁸ I said to him, “Tell me by what angel you are frustrated.” And he answered, “By the holy and precious name of the Almighty God, called by the Hebrews Patike and, among the Greeks, Emmanuel, who descended from on high. Him I fear and tremble before; if anyone adjures me by Eloī – the great name of his power – I vanish.” ⁹ And I, Solomon, on hearing this, ordered him to cut Theban marble. But, when he began to cut, all the demons raised a loud clamour for the sake of King Beelzeboul. ¹⁰ But I, Solomon, asked him, saying, “If you wish to receive forgiveness, tell me about the heavenly things.” Beelzeboul replied, “Listen, O King: if you burn stacte, frankincense, sea-bulbs, nard, and saffron, and light seven lamps during an earthquake, you will shake the house. But if, while pure, you light them at dawn in the sunlight, you will see the heavenly dragons – how they coil and draw the chariot of the sun.” ¹¹ And I Solomon, hearing this, rebuked him, and ⁶ In place of ‘the Red Sea’, Conybeare has just ‘the sea’.

⁷ Conybeare lacks this entire verse. ‘Hesperia’ (Ἑσπερία – literally, ‘Western Star’) could be a reference to the planet, Venus.

⁸ Here, ‘Patike’ (Πατικῇ) could be a corruption of ὁ Πάτερ (‘Father’); ‘Eloī’ is Aramaic for ‘my God’.

⁹ Presumably, the marble was from Thebes, in Egypt.

¹⁰ Conybeare notes that the ‘sea-bulbs’ were perhaps balls of hair-like texture, which the sea washes up on Mediterranean shores.

¹¹ Jesus similarly rebukes the unclean spirit in Mk 1:25.

αὐτὸν καὶ εἶπον· Σιώπησαι καὶ πρίξε τὰ μάρμαρα καθὼς said, "Silence for this present, and continue to cut the marble as I ordered you."

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 7

¹ And, after blessing God, I, Solomon, summoned another demon to attend me; and he came before my face. And his face was lifted high in the air, and the rest of his body was like a snail. ² It scattered many soldiers and stirred up a violent cloud of dust from the ground, lifting it high and tossing it about in a way that left me dumbfounded; and I said, "Whom can I ask?" And this went on for a long time. ³ And I stood up, and spat on the ground in that spot, and sealed with the ring of God. And forthwith the dust-wind stopped. Then I asked him, saying, "Who are you, O wind?" Then, shaking up more dust, he answered me, "What do you want, King Solomon?" ⁴ I answered him, "Tell me what you are called, and I would like to ask you a question." But, thus, I give thanks to God, who has made me wise to answer their evil plots.

And the spirit said to me, "I am called Lix Tetrax." ⁵ And I said to him, "What is your business?" And he said, "I scatter men, make whirlwinds, kindle fire, set fields ablaze, and destroy houses. But I do most of my business in the summer. But, if I find time, I lurk in the corners of walls night and day. For, I am

² In place of, "Whom can I ask?" (τίνα ἔχω ἐρωτῆσαι;), Duling has, "What do we have here?"

³ For the demon's question, Conybeare reads, "What would you have, King Solomon?"

⁴ 'Lix' (Λιξ) is a magical term referring to the earth; 'Tetrax' (Τέτραξ) refers to a four-seasoned year.

⁵ The reference of 'the great one' (τοῦ μεγάλου) is not clear; perhaps it refers to Beelzeboul. The goddess Artemis, whose worship centred in Ephesus, was called 'the Great' (cf. Ac 19:24, 27ff., 34ff.); she is mentioned in this book at 8:11.

ἤδη γὰρ γόνος εἰμί τοῦ μεγάλου. ⁶ εἶπον δὲ αὐτῷ· Ἐν ποίῳ ἄστρῳ κεῖσαι; ὁ δὲ εἶπεν· Εἰς αὐτὸ τὸ ἄκρον τοῦ κέρατος τῆς σελήνης τὸ ἐν τῷ νότῳ εὐρισκόμενον ἐκεῖ μου τὸ ἄστρον. διότι τὰ σφάλματα τοῦ ἡμιτριταίου προσετάχθην ἀνιμᾶσθαι. διὰ τοῦτο ἰδόντες πολλοὶ τῶν ἀνθρώπων εὗχονται εἰς τὸν ἡμιτριταῖον ἐν τοῖς τρισὶν ὀνόμασι τούτοις· Βουλταλά· Θαλλάλ· Μελχάλ· καὶ ἰῶμαι αὐτούς. ⁷ εἶπον δὲ αὐτῷ ἐγὼ Σολομῶν· Ὅτε οὖν θέλεις κακουργεῖν, ἐν τίνι καταργεῖσαι; ὁ δὲ ἔφη· Ἐν τῷ ἀγγέλῳ ᾧ καὶ ὁ ἡμιτριταῖος παύεται. ἐπηρώτησα δὲ αὐτόν· Ἐν ποίῳ ὀνόματι καταργεῖσαι; ὁ δὲ εἶπεν· Ἐν τῷ ὀνόματι τοῦ ἀρχαγγέλου Ἀζαήλ. ⁸ καὶ ἐπισφράγισα τὸν δαίμονα καὶ ἐκέλευσα αὐτὸν λίθους ἀρπάζειν καὶ εἰς τὰ ὑψηλὰ τοῦ ναοῦ ἀκοντίζειν τοῖς τεχνίταις· καὶ ἀναγκαζόμενον τὸ δαιμόνιον τὰ προστεταγμένα αὐτῷ ἐποίει.

offspring of the great one.” ⁶ And I said to him, “Under what star do you lie?” And he answered, “In the very tip of the moon’s horn, when it is found in the south. There is my star. For, I have been bidden to restrain the convulsions of the hemi-tertian fever; and this is why many men pray to the hemi-tertian fever, using these three names: Bultala, Thallal, Melchal. And I heal them.” ⁷ And I said to him, “I am Solomon; so, when you would do harm, by whose aid do you do it?” But he said to me, “By the angel’s, by whom also the hemi-tertian fever is lulled to rest.” So, I questioned him, and said, “And by what name?” And he answered, “That of the archangel Azazel.” ⁸ And I sealed the demon and commanded him to seize stones and hurl them up to the craftsmen at the high points of the temple; and, under compulsion, the demon carried out the tasks assigned to him.

⁶ A more literal translation of ‘the hemi-tertian fever’, here following Conybeare, Duling has ‘the day-and-a-half fever’.

⁷ The name, ‘Azazel’ (Ἀζαήλ), found in 2 Ezra 9:14, is not mentioned in the lists of the archangels in 1En 9–10; Azazel, mentioned in relation to the scapegoat sent into the desert in Lv 16:8, 26, becomes an archdemon in Jewish literature, perhaps because demons were believed to dwell in the desert (cf. Is 13:21; 34:11ff., Tb 8:3, Mt 12:43, 1En 9:6, 10).

⁸ At the start of this verse, Conybeare adds ‘And I summoned the archangel Azazel’.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 8

¹ And I glorified God afresh, who gave me this authority, and ordered another demon to come before me. And there came seven spirits, bound and woven together, fair of form and graceful. ² And I Solomon, seeing them, marvelled and asked them, "Who are you?" And they said, "We are elements, world rulers of darkness." ³ And the first said, "I am Deceit." The second said, "I am Strife." The third, "I am Fate." The fourth, "I am Distress." The fifth, "I am Error." The sixth, "I am Power." The seventh, "I am the Worst, ⁴ and our stars are in heaven. Seven stars humble in sheen, and all together. And we are called as it were goddesses. We change our abode together, dwelling, now in Lydia, now on Olympus, now on a great mountain."

⁵ So, I, Solomon questioned them, beginning with the first, "Tell me, what you do." The first said, "I am Deceit, I deceive and weave snares here and there. I whet and excite heresies. But I have an angel who frustrates me, Lamechiel." ⁶ The

¹ After 'seven spirits', Conybeare adds 'female'. The 7 spirits may be a reference to the Pleiades.

² Conybeare has a longer text for this verse, ending: But they, with one accord, said with one voice, "We are of the thirty-three elements of the cosmic ruler of the darkness."

³ In place of 'Fate', here following Duling, Conybeare has 'Klothod, which is battle'.

⁴ 'Lydia' was in southwestern Asia Minor and bordered Greek colonies on its western border; 'Olympus', the highest mountain in northeastern Greece, was believed to reach up to the heavens and to be the abode of the gods; presumably the 'great mountain' is a similar mythical mountain, or Olympus is being viewed as a mysterious abode of the gods above all mountains.

⁵ 'Lamechiel' is not named among the archangels of 1En 9-10.

⁶ 'Baruchiel' is also not named among the archangels of 1En; on Baruch, meaning 'blessed', see Jr 51:31-35 (LXX).

second said, "I am Strife; I sow discord, wielding the weapons of this place – wood, stones, and swords. Yet I have an angel who thwarts me: Baruchiel." ⁷ Likewise, also the third said, "I am Fate; I spin and bring all things to war and not to make peace honourably with the victors. And why say more? I have an angel that thwarts me: Marmarath." ⁸ And the fourth said, "I cause men to lose their senses; I sow division; I create separation; accompanied by Strife, I tear brothers apart and do many other similar things. But why say more? I have an angel who thwarts me: the great Balthioul." ⁹ The fifth said, "I am Error, King Solomon; I lead you astray – and, indeed, I led you astray in making you kill your brothers. I lead you to search out tombs and teach men to break into them; I lead souls away from all godliness, and I commit many other evil deeds. Yet I have an angel who thwarts me: Ouriel." ¹⁰ And, likewise, the sixth said: "I am Power. I raise up tyrants, I overthrow kings, and I grant strength to all adversaries. I have an angel who thwarts me: Asteraoth." ¹¹ And, likewise, the seventh said, "I am the Worst, and I make you, King, worse off than you were;

⁷ The name, 'Marmarath', may be derived from the Aramaic for 'lord of lords'.

⁸ 'Balthioul' does not seem to be mentioned elsewhere in this period.

⁹ This verse is probably a reference to Solomon's execution of Adonijah (1K 2:25).

¹⁰ 'Asteraoth' is perhaps a variation of a Canaanite fertility goddess עשתרת (deliberately mis-vocalized in Hebrew); Solomon patronized her cult (1K 11:5).

¹¹ In Greek mythology, Artemis was usually a virgin huntress of the wild and associated with the young of all living things, especially wildlife; she was, therefore, the goddess of birth and patroness of hunting. Sudden, violent deaths among women were said to come from her bow. Artemis of Ephesus, mentioned in Acts 19, was predominantly a mother goddess and patroness of fertility like Cybele or Ashtoreth; she was a many-breasted goddess housed in the Artemisium, one of the Seven Wonders of the Ancient World.

καὶ σέ, βασιλεῦ, κακώσω ὅτε κελευθῶ Ἀρτέμιδος δεσμοῖς· διὰ ταῦτα γάρ σε διαπρᾶξαι ἔχεις τὴν ἐπιθυμίαν ὡς φίλτατος, ἐμοὶ δὲ κατ' ἐμαυτὴν ἐπιθυμίαν τὴν σοφίαν. ἐὰν γάρ τις σοφός, οὐκ ἐπιστρέψει ἵχνος πρὸς μέ.

¹² καὶ γὰρ δὲ Σολομῶν ἀκούσας ταῦτα ἐσφράγισα αὐτοὺς τῷ δακτυλιδίῳ τοῦ θεοῦ καὶ ἐκέλευσα αὐτοὺς ὀρύσσειν τοὺς θεμελίους τοῦ ναοῦ· καὶ ἐτάξατο τὸ μὲν μῆκος πῆχεις διακοσίους πεντήκοντα· καὶ πάντα τὰ κελευσθέντα αὐτοῖς κατηργάζοντο.

because I will impose the bonds of Artemis. For, while you are driven to fulfil your desire as one deeply enamoured, my own desire is for wisdom. For, if a man is truly wise, he will not turn his steps toward me."

¹² And I, Solomon, on hearing this, sealed them with the ring of God and commanded them to dig the foundations of the Temple; and the length was set at two hundred and fifty cubits; and they carried out everything that had been commanded of them.

¹² Cf. 1K 6:2.

¹ And again, I asked to go around and see other demons, and a demon was brought to me – a human in all its limbs, yet headless. ² And I said to him, “Tell me who you are and what you are called.” The demon replied, “I am called Murder; for, I devour heads, seeking to acquire a head for myself, yet I am never satisfied; I desire to obtain a head exactly like yours, O King.”

³ On hearing this, I sealed him by extending my hand over his chest. The demon leapt up, tore himself loose, and groaned, saying, “Woe is me! Where did I encounter that traitor Ornias? I do not see him.” ⁴ And I said to him, “And how do you see?” He replied, “Through my breasts.” ⁵ And I, Solomon, hearing the sweetness of his voice and wanting to know, asked him, “Whence do you speak?” And he said, “I have inherited the voice of many men; for, those who are called dumb among men, I have closed the heads of these. When children become ten days old, then in the night when the child cries, I become a spirit and through the voice I enter. ⁶ For the premature,

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 9

¹ The headless demon is an old Egyptian conception with astrological associations and is known as the demon who causes quartan fever; McCown identifies him with the headless demon of the magical papyri.

² Conybeare has ‘Envy’ in place of ‘Murder’.

³ In place of ‘groaned’, Duling has ‘muttered’.

⁴ One could figuratively translate ‘breasts’ as ‘feelings’ (as Conybeare).

⁵ At the end of this verse, Conybeare has an ellipsis, suggesting some missing text.

⁶ A more literal translation of ‘premature’ is ‘out of season’.

however, an encounter with me is particularly harmful. My power resides in my hands; seizing heads as if they were pieces of wood, I cut them off and attach them to myself, and then I consume them through the neck by means of the fire within me. I am the one who inflames the limbs, afflicting the feet and causing sores. ⁷ And, by the fiery lightning, I am brought to nothing.” ⁸ And I commanded him to remain until Beelzebub should come, and until the time that his friend might be born.

⁷ Conybeare has a considerably longer text for this verse: And I Solomon, on hearing this, said to him, “Tell me how you discharge forth the fire? Out of what sources do you emit it?” And the spirit said to me, “From the Daystar. For, here has not yet been found that Elburion, to whom men offer prayers and kindle lights. And his name is invoked by the seven demons before me. And he cherishes them.”

⁸ As with v. 7, Conybeare follows a manuscript with considerably more text for this verse: But I said to him, “Tell me his name.” But he answered, “I cannot tell you. For, if I tell his name, I render myself incurable. But he will come in response to his name.” And, on hearing this, I Solomon said to him, “Tell me then, by what angel you are frustrated?” And he answered, “By the fiery flash of lightning.” And I bowed myself before the Lord God of Israel, and bade him remain in the keeping of Beelzeboul until Iax should come.

¹ And I ordered another demon to come before me, and he came before me in the form of a huge hound, and said in a loud voice, "Hail, O King Solomon!" ² And I was astonished and said to him, "Who are you, a dog?" And he said, "You consider me a dog; but, before you, O king, I was a man. And I have wrought many wicked works in the world and, by my great power, I can seize the stars of heaven, and I am working many evil deeds. ³ So, I harm those who follow my star and drive them to raving madness; I seize men's hearts through the throat and thus destroy them." ⁴ And I said to him, "What is your name?" And he said, "Sceptre." ⁵ And I said to him, "What is your work, and what can you do for me?" The demon said, "Give me your man, and I will lead him to a mountain, and show him a loose emerald, with which you can adorn the Temple of God."

⁶ On hearing these things, I immediately commanded my servant to go with him, taking along the ring bearing the seal of God, and I said to him, "Go with him and, whoever

- ¹ Origen (Contra, 6:30) says that the sixth of the Seven Ruling Demons, according to Celsus, had the face of a dog; and, in a diagram that he had obtained, the demon was called Erataoth (cf. 18:1).
- ² In place of 'wicked works', Duling has 'unlawful deeds'.
- ³ The meaning is literal: the way to the midriff is through the throat.
- ⁴ Here, 'Sceptre' translates Ῥάβδος – Conybeare has 'Staff'.
- ⁵ Conybeare ends with 'the temple of the Lord God'.
- ⁶ Conybeare ends the verse, "and bring the demon hither."

shows you the emerald, seal him with the ring, examine the place carefully, and bring the ring back to me.” ⁷ And, when he showed him the emerald, and he sealed him, and brought the emerald back to me. ⁸ And I then decreed that the two demons – the Headless One and the Hound – should be bound and sealed, and that the emerald should be carried around, day and night, like a torch for the craftsmen at work.

⁹ And I took from the stones of that settlement two hundred shekels in the altar’s memorial; and the stone was shaped like a leek. ¹⁰ And I, Solomon, glorified the Lord God and enclosed the treasure of the stone. I freed the demons from the marble blocks for the building of the temple. ¹¹ And I asked the hound, “By which angel are you thwarted?” And he said, “By the great Briathos.”

⁷ In v. 6, the command is to bring the ring (not the emerald) back (but see also the note thereto on MSS differences).

⁸ For this verse, Conybeare reads: And I Solomon decided to confine with my seal on my right hand the two, the headless demon, likewise the hound, that was so huge; he should be bound as well. And I bade the hound keep safe the fiery spirit so that lamps as it were might by day and night cast their light through its maw on the artisans at work.

⁹ The Greek text of this verse is possibly corrupt and the translation is uncertain.

¹⁰ In place of ‘treasure of the stone’ (τὸν θησαυρὸν τοῦ λίθου), Duling has ‘treasure chest containing the stone’.

¹¹ ‘Briathos’ is not mentioned elsewhere in the Pseudepigrapha.

He replied, "Leontophoros. An Arab by birth." ⁵ And I said to him, "How are you and your legion thwarted, or by which angel?" ¹ At the start of this verse, Conybeare adds, "And I praised the Lord God of heaven and earth."

² A more literal translation of 'taint' (αἰτίαν, here following Duling) is 'cause'.

³ Here is a clear reference to the Gerasene demoniac, Mk 5:1–13 (and cf. v. 6, below).

⁴ Origen (Contra, 6:30) says that the first of the Seven Ruling Demons mentioned by Celsus was a goat shaped like a lion but that, in the diagram he obtained, he was called Michael the Lion-like.

⁵ In place of 'the name', Conybeare has 'my name'.

¹ And I worshipped the God of Israel and ordered another demon to come forward. And a three-headed dragon came before me, of fearful hue. ² And I asked him, "Who are you?" And he said, "I am a spirit of three kinds, doing three works: I blind children in the wombs of women, and I stop their ears, and I make them dumb and deaf, and I strike men in the body, and I make them fall down, to foam, and gnash their teeth. ³ But I am thwarted by the 'Place of the Skull'; for, there, the angel of the Wonderful Counsellor predestined me to suffer, in public on a tree. He thwarts me to whom I am subordinate. ⁴ But, in the place where he went up, King Solomon, they set up a dark pillar in the air, a gift fashioned by Ehippas from the Red Sea, brought from inside Arabia. At the beginning of the temple that I began to build, King Solomon, there is much gold, for you to dig up and take." ⁵ And I, Solomon, sending my servant, found it just as the demon told me; and, sealing it with the ring, I praised God. ⁶ So, I said to him, "What are you called?" And the demon said, "Summit of Dragons." And I ordered him to make bricks for the Temple of God.

³ The 'Place of the Skull' is a clear reference to the crucifixion of Jesus.

⁴ The story of the Arabian demon, Ehippas, and the demon of the Red Sea is found in Chs. 22-24.

⁵ In place of 'sealing it with the ring', Duling has 'sealed (him with) the ring' - the object is possibly the demon.

⁶ At the end of the verse, Conybeare adds, "He had human hands."

- ¹ Dishevelled hair was characteristic of the Greek Medusa, guardian goddess of Aphrodite. In the primitive artwork of Aramaic Incantation Bowls, the Lilith is frequently pictured with dishevelled hair and is sometimes so described.
- ² Washing one's hands was, apparently, a magical cleansing rite.
- ³ Conybeare has a considerably longer text for this verse: And I, Solomon, did as she enjoined me, and restrained myself because of the wisdom dwelling in me, in order that I might hear of her deeds, and reprehend them, and manifest them to men. And I sat down, and said to the demon, "What are you?" And she said, "I am called among men Obizuth; and by night I do not sleep, but go my rounds over all the world, and visit women in childbirth. And, divining the hour, I take my stand; and, if I am lucky, I strangle the child. But if not, I retire to another place. For, I cannot for a single night retire unsuccessful. For, I am a fierce spirit, of myriad names and many shapes. And now hither, now thither I roam. And to westering parts I go my rounds.
- ⁴ Conybeare has a longer text: But, as it now is, though you have sealed me round with the ring of God, you have done nothing. I am not standing before you, and you will not be able to command me. For, I have no work other than the destruction of children, and the making their ears to be deaf, and the working of evil to their eyes, and the binding their mouths with a bond, and the ruin of their minds, and painning of their bodies.

ation of mouths, the ruin of minds, and the affliction of bodies.” ⁵ And, hearing this, I, Solomon, marvelled; yet I did not see her form; for, her body was darkness and her hair was wild. ⁶ And I, Solomon, said to her, “Tell me, evil spirit, by which angel are you thwarted?” And she said to me, “By the angel Raphael; and, when women give birth, if my name is written on a piece of papyrus, I shall flee from that place.” ⁷ And, on hearing this, I ordered her to be bound by her hair and suspended in front of the temple, so that all the sons of Israel passing by might see and glorify the God who gave me this authority.

⁵ Duling has ‘shape’ in place of ‘form’.

⁶ The angel, ‘Raphael’, is mentioned in both 1En and Tb.

⁷ After ‘God’, Duling adds ‘of Israel’ but this is not attested in McGown’s version of the Greek text.

And he came in the form of a coiling dragon, but having the face and feet of a man, while its limbs were those of a dragon; and it had wings on its back. ² And, when I saw it, I was astonished, and said, "Who are you and whence do you come?" And the spirit said to me, "At first, I stood before you, King Solomon, as a spirit made into a god among men, but thwarted by the ring given to you by God. ³ And now I am the one called the Winged Dragon, not laying with many women, but a few beautiful ones who bear the name of this star-tree. ⁴ And I approach them as a winged spirit between their thighs; one bears the child I have given her, and the offspring becomes Eros; but the woman who could not bear it perished. Such is my deed. ⁵ So, let me alone be satisfied, while the rest of the demons, disturbed and cast down by you, speak with all truth; and they will cause the wood to be gathered by you for construction in the Temple to be consumed by fire." ⁶ And, as the demon said this, I saw the spirit going forth from his

² Another possible opening is, "This is the first time I have stood before you."

³ The translation, 'star-tree', is uncertain; Duling has a proper name, 'Touxylou of this star'.

⁴ 'Eros' was the Greek god of love.

⁵ In place of 'satisfied', Duling has 'content'.

⁶ Lebanon was a primary source of timber used in the construction of the Temple.

mouth, and it set the forest of Lebanon on fire and burned up all the wood that we had put in the Temple of God. ⁷ And I, Solomon, saw what the spirit had done, and I marvelled and glorified God. And I asked the dragon-shaped demon, saying, “By what angel are you thwarted?” And he said, “By the great angel who is seated in the second heaven, who is called in Hebrew Bazazath.” ⁸ And I, Solomon, hearing this and invoking his angel, ordered him to cut marble for the building of the Temple of God.

⁷ ‘Bazazath’ is not mentioned elsewhere in the Pseudepigrapha.

⁸ Duling and Conybeare have ‘condemned’ in place of ‘ordered’.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 15

¹ And, praising God, I ordered another demon to come before me; and there came before me another spirit, like a woman; but, on her shoulders, were two other heads with hands. ² And I asked her, "Tell me, who are you?" She said to me, "I am Enepsigos, and have many names." ³ And I said her, "By what angel are you thwarted?" But she said to me, "What do you seek? Why do you ask? I can change, like the goddess I am called. And I change again, taking another form. ⁴ And so, do not desire to know all about me. But, since you are before me, listen. I dwell beside the moon and, for this reason, I have three forms. ⁵ At times, I am magically invoked by the wise as Kronos; at other times, with those who call me down, I appear in another shape. The measure of the element is inexplicable, indefinable, and not to be thwarted. Then, changing into these three forms, I come down and become as you see me; ⁶ but I am thwarted by the angel Rathanael, who sits in the third heaven. So, I tell you: this temple cannot contain me."

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 15

¹ Duling has 'arms' in place of 'hands'.

² McCown says this demon is probably Hecate, the moon goddess with three forms.

³ In place of 'form', here following Conybeare, Duling has 'shape'.

⁴ Presumably, the metamorphosis is linked with the changing phases of the moon.

⁶ 'Rathanael' is not mentioned elsewhere in the Pseudepigrapha.

⁷ καὶ γὰρ οὖν Σολομὼν εὐξάμενος τῷ θεῷ μου καὶ ἐπικαλεσάμενος τὸν ἄγγελον ὃν εἶπέ μοι, Ῥαθαναήλ, ἐποίησα τὴν σφραγίδα καὶ κατεσφράγισε αὐτὴν ἀλύσει τριττῇ, καὶ κάτω δεσμῶν τῆς ἀλύσεως ἐποίησα τὴν σφραγίδα τοῦ θεοῦ. ⁸ καὶ προεφήτευσέ μοι τὸ πνεῦμα λέγων· Ταῦτα μὲν σύ, βασιλεῦ Σολομῶν, ποιεῖς ἡμῖν. μετὰ δὲ χρόνον τινὰ ῥαγήσεται σοι ἡ βασιλεία σου, καὶ πάλιν ἐν καιρῷ διαρραγήσεται ὁ ναὸς οὗτος καὶ συνελευσθήσεται πᾶσα Ἱερουσαλήμ ἀπὸ βασιλέως Περσῶν καὶ Μήδων καὶ Χαλδαίων· καὶ τὰ σκεύη τούτου τοῦ ναοῦ οὗ σὺ ποιεῖς δουλεύσουσι θεοῖς. ⁹ μεθ' ὧν ἂν καὶ πάντα τὰ ἀγγεῖα ἐν οἷς ἡμᾶς κατακλείεις κλασθήσονται ὑπὸ χειρῶν ἀνθρώπων καὶ τότε ἡμεῖς ἐξελευσόμεθα ἐν πολλῇ δυνάμει ἔνθεν καὶ εἰς τὸν κόσμον κατασπαρησόμεθα. ¹⁰ καὶ πλανήσομεν πᾶσαν τὴν οἰκουμένην μέχρι πολλοῦ καιροῦ ἕως τοῦ θεοῦ ὁ υἱὸς τανυσθῇ ἐπὶ ξύλον· καὶ οὐκέτι γὰρ γίνεται τοιοῦτος βασιλεὺς ὅμοιος αὐτῷ ὁ πάντας ἡμᾶς καταργῶν, οὗ ἡ μήτηρ ἀνδρὶ μιγήσεται. ¹¹ καὶ τίς λάβῃ τοιαύτην ἐξουσίαν κατὰ πνευμάτων εἰ μὴ ἐκεῖνος; ὃν ὁ πρῶτος διάβολος πειρᾶσαι ζητήσῃ καὶ οὐκ ἰσχύσει πρὸς αὐτόν, οὗ ἡ ψῆφος τοῦ ὀνόματος $\overline{\chi\mu\delta}$, ὃ ἐστὶν Ἐμμανουήλ. ¹² διὰ τοῦτο, βασιλεῦ Σολομῶν, ὁ καιρὸς σου πονηρὸς καὶ τὰ ἔτη σου μικρὰ καὶ πονηρὰ καὶ τῷ δούλῳ σου δοθήσεται ἡ βασιλεία σου.

⁷ And I, Solomon, praying to my God and calling on the angel about whom she spoke, Rathanael, made the seal and sealed it with a third chain; and, to bind her down, I used the seal of God; ⁸ and the spirit prophesied to me, saying, "You do this to us now, King Solomon but, after a time, your kingdom shall be broken and win due course, this Temple shall be destroyed; and all Jerusalem shall be taken by the king of the Persians, Medes, and Chaldaeans. And the vessels of this Temple that you make shall be used to serve other gods; ⁹ and all the jars in which you confine us will be broken by human hands; then we will come out with great power from here and be scattered throughout the world. ¹⁰ And we shall lead astray the inhabited world for a long season, until the Son of God is stretched on the wood. For, never did a king like him arise, frustrating us all, whose mother shall not have contact with man. ¹¹ And who has such authority over spirits, except he, whom the first devil will seek to tempt, but will not prevail over? The number of his name is 644, which is Emmanuel. ¹² Therefore, King Solomon, your time is evil, and your years short and evil, and your kingdom shall be given to your servant."

⁸ Before 'spirit', Duling adds 'evil' in parentheses.

⁹ Duling has 'vessels' in place of 'jars'.

¹⁰ This verse is a clear allusion to the crucifixion of Jesus (cf. Mk 15:39); Origen (Contra 1:60, in which, at the birth of Jesus, 'The demons lost their strength and became weak; their sorcery was confuted and their power overthrown').

¹¹ If the Greek letters of 'Emmanuel' (Ἐμμανουήλ) are taken as numerical symbols, they add up to 644.

¹² Conybeare notes that this prophecy corresponds to one Lactantius quotes from an apocryphal Book of Solomon; McCown doubts the reference.

¹³ καὶ γὰρ Σολομῶν ἀκούσας ταῦτα ἐδόξασα τὸν θεὸν καὶ θαυμάσας τῶν δαιμόνων τὰς ἀπολογίας ἕως τῶν ἀποβάσεων ἠπίστουν αὐτοῖς καὶ οὐκ ἐπίστευον τοῖς λεγομένοις ὑπ' αὐτῶν. ¹⁴ ὅτε δὲ ἐγένοντο, τότε συνῆκα καὶ ἐν τῷ θανάτῳ μου ἔγραψα τὴν διαθήκην ταύτην πρὸς τοὺς υἱοὺς Ἰσραὴλ καὶ ἔδωκα αὐτοῖς ὥστε εἰδέναι τὰς δυνάμεις τῶν δαιμόνων καὶ τὰς μορφὰς αὐτῶν καὶ τὰ ὀνόματα αὐτῶν τῶν ἀγγέλων ἐν οἷς καταργοῦνται οἱ δαίμονες. ¹⁵ καὶ δοξάσας κύριον τὸν θεὸν Ἰσραὴλ ἐκέλευσα περιδεθῆναι τὸ πνεῦμα δεσμοῖς ἀλύτοις.

¹³ And I, Solomon, hearing this, glorified God; yet, while marvelling at the demons' defence, I distrusted them and did not believe until they occurred; ¹⁴ but, when they were realized, then I understood and, at my death, I wrote this Testament and gave it to the children of Israel, so they might know the powers of the demons and their shapes, and the names of their angels, by which these angels are frustrated. ¹⁵ And, glorifying the Lord God of Israel, I ordered the spirits to be bound with unbreakable bonds.

¹⁴ The content of this verse suggests that this may have been the end of the original text, or at least the end of a section.

¹⁵ In place of 'unbreakable bonds', Conybeare has 'bonds indissoluble'.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 16

¹ And, having praised God, I ordered another spirit to come before me; and there came before me another demon, having in front the form of a horse, but behind of a fish. And he said in a loud voice, "King Solomon, I am a cruel spirit of the sea. So, I arise and come on the seas by the sea and hinder the men who sailing on it. ² Rousing myself like a wave and transforming my shape, I surge on the ships. My task is to take in both the wealth and the people; for, I seize and toss men about in the sea – so great is my craving for bodies – yet, to this day, I cast them back out of the sea. ³ But, since Beelzeboul, ruler of the spirits of the air, the earth, and under the earth, gives counsel about the actions of each one of us, I too ascended from the sea to seek his advice. ⁴ I also possess another form and mode of action: I transform into waves, rise from the sea, and reveal myself to humans – who call me Kunopegos because I take on human shape; that is my true name. As I emerge, I afflict humans with a certain nausea. ⁵ So, I came at the counsel of the ruler Beelzeboul, and he delivered me into your hands.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 16

¹ Duling has 'who sail' in parentheses.

² The translation of the end of the verse is uncertain; Duling ends with 'but until now I have been casting (the treasures) out of the sea'.

³ Cf. 2:9, 3:1ff.

⁴ In place of 'Kunopegos' (Κυνόπηγον), Conybeare has 'Kuno[s]paston'; the name appears to be a compound of 'dog' and 'fountain', and the demon probably has a connexion with Poseidon.

⁵ Duling ends, "my spirit is ceasing from speaking to you."

But now I stand before you and, because I have had no water for two or three days, the spirit within me that speaks to you is failing.” ⁶ And I said to him, “Tell me by what angel you are thwarted.” And he answered, “By Iameth.” ⁷ And I ordered him to be placed into a broad, flat vessel and ten measures of seawater to be poured over it; I covered the top with marble, sealed the mouth of the vessel with asphalt, pitch, and hemp rope; and, having sealed it with my signet ring, ordered it to be deposited in the Temple of God.

⁶ ‘Iameth’ (Ἰαμέθ) is presumably a compound from Yah-, or ἰαομαι, (‘I heal’).

⁷ Here, ‘hemp rope’ follows Duling (Conybeare lacks the term).

¹ And I ordered another spirit to appear before me. And there came a spirit of a man with a dark form and shining eyes. And I asked him, saying, "Who are you?" And he said, "I am the spirit of a man of the flesh, a giant who died in the time of the giants." ² And I said to him, "Tell me what you do on earth and where you dwell." He replied, "My home is in inaccessible places. My work is this: I sit among the dead in the tombs and, at midnight, I take on the form of the dead; if I catch anyone, I immediately slay him with the sword." ³ But if I cannot kill him, I cause him to be possessed by a demon, to devour his own flesh, and saliva to drool from his beard." ⁴ But I said to him, "Fear the God of heaven and earth, and tell me by which angel you are thwarted." And he answered, "He destroys me who will be Saviour; if his mark is written on one's forehead, he will defeat me, and in fear I shall quickly retreat; and this is the sign of the cross." ⁵ On hearing this, I, Solomon, imprisoned the demon, just as I did the other demons.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 17

¹ The translation, 'of the flesh' (for ὀχεικὸν) is uncertain; Duling has 'lecherous'.

² Duling has a paragraph break at 'He replied'.

³ Conybeare ends, "and the hair to fall off his chin."

⁴ The MS followed by Conybeare does not mention the 'sign of the cross'.

⁵ In place of 'imprisoned', Duling has 'locked up'.

But at once, with one voice, they said, "We are the thirty-six elements, the rulers of the darkness of this age. ³ But you, king, cannot wrong us or imprison us; but, because God has given you authority over all the spirits of the air and of the earth and of the underworld, behold, we stand before you like the other spirits.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 18

² 'Rulers' translates στοιχεῖα.

³ Conybeare has a longer text for this verse: But, O King Solomon, you will not wrong us nor imprison us, nor lay command on us; but, since the Lord God has given you authority over every spirit, in the air, and on the earth, and under the earth, therefore do we also present ourselves before thee like the other spirits, from ram and bull, from both twin and crab, lion and virgin, scales and scorpion, archer, goat-horned, water-pourer, and fish. In place of 'the underworld', Duling has 'the (regions) beneath the earth'.

⁴ Conybeare reads: Then I Solomon invoked the name of the Lord Sabaoth, and questioned each in turn as to what was its character. And I bade each one come forward and tell of its actions. Then the first came forward, and said, "I am the first decans of the zodiacal circle, and I am called the ram, and with me are these two." So, I put to them the question, "Who are you called?" The first said, "I, O Lord, am called Ruax.

⁵ Another reading for 'Ruax' is (perhaps) 'Rhyx'; the first decan is most important, and the name may be related to 'rex' (king).

⁶ ‘Barsafael’ is not mentioned elsewhere in the Pseudepigrapha.

⁷ The angel, ‘Uriel’ (or ‘Ouriel’) is common in the Gnostic texts of the Nag Hammadi collection.

⁸ Conybeare lacks this verse (the MS he used has a lacuna at this point).

⁹ In place of ‘Kairoxanondalon’ (Καιρωξανονδάλον), Conybeare has ‘Iudal’ (twice in this verse).

¹⁰ Conybeare notes: The medical terms that stand in the Greek text are found in Hippocrates’ works; ‘tetanic recurvation’ (ὀπισθοτόνους) is a disease in which the body draws back and stiffens.

¹¹ The name, ‘Sphandor’ (Σφανδῶρ), may be derived from a form of ‘Light-giver’.

¹² There is a lacuna near the middle of this verse, as indicated by the ellipsis.

¹³ Many of the angles’ names given in this section have Hebrew-sounding names and occur in gnostic texts and mystical papyri.

But, if I hear: Adonai, shut up Metathiax, I flee at once." ¹⁵ The eleventh said, "I am called Katanikotael. I send war and rebellion to homes. If anyone wants to make peace, let him write on seven laurel leaves the names that thwart me: Angel, Eae, Ieo, Sabaoth: shut up Katanikotael; and, after soaking the laurel leaves, let him sprinkle his house with water, and I flee at once." ¹⁶ The twelfth said, "I am called Saphthorael. I sow discord among men, and I delight in causing them to stumble. If he writes these things: Iae, Ieo, sons of Sabaoth, and wears them about his neck, I flee at once." ¹⁷ The thirteenth said, "I am called Phobothel. I cause loosening of the tendons. But, if I hear: Adonai, I flee at once." ¹⁸ The fourteenth said, "I am called Leroel. I inflict cold and chills and stomach pain. If I hear: Iax, do not stay, do not warm yourself; for, Solomon is more powerful than the eleven fathers, I flee at once." ¹⁹ The fifteenth said, "I am called ¹⁴ The name, 'Metathiax' (Μεταθίαξ) may go back to Thiax (a variant of Satyros, that is, Apollo).

¹⁵ Conybeare has a rather longer text for this verse: The eleventh said, "I am called Katanikotaêl. I create strife and wrongs in men's homes, and send on them hard temper. If anyone would be at peace in his home, let him write on seven leaves of laurel the name of the angel that frustrates me, along with these names: Iae, Ieô, sons of Sabaôth, in the name of the great God let him shut up Katanikotaêl. Then let him wash the laurel-leaves in water, and sprinkle his house with the water, from within to the outside. And at once I retreat."

¹⁶ Cf. the words to write in v. 15.

¹⁷ Another possible reading for 'loosening of the tendons' (as Duling) is 'nervous breakdowns'. Use of the name, 'Adonai', is common in gnostic and magic writings.

¹⁸ In place of 'stomach pain', Duling has 'sore throat'.

¹⁹ There is confusion in vv. 18 & 19 in the MS that Conybeare used; for this verse, he reads: The fifteenth said, "I am called Roêlêd. I cause cold and frost and pain in the stomach. Let me only hear the words, "Iax, bide not, be not warmed, for Solomon is fairer than eleven fathers," I at [once] retreat."

Suvelti. I send terror and sleep. But if I hear: Rizoil, shut up Suvelti, I flee at once.”²⁰ The sixteenth said, “I am called Katrax. I afflict men with incurable fevers. Whoever wishes to be healed should grind up coriander and apply it to their lips, saying: I adjure you by Dan: depart from the image of God – and I flee at once.”²¹ The seventeenth said, “I am called Ieropa. I sit on the stomach of man, and I cause convulsions in the bath; and, in the street, I find the man and I make him fall. And, if he says into the right ear of the afflicted for the third time: Iouda Zizabou, you see, he makes me flee.”²² The eighteenth said, “I am called Modebel. I divorce a wife from a husband. If he writes the names of the eight fathers and places them in the windows, I flee at once.”²³ The nineteenth said, “My name is Mardero. I bring incurable fevers; and, in whatever house you write my name, I flee at once.”²⁴ The twentieth said, “I am called Rhyx Nathothe. I settle on the knees of men. If someone writes ‘Phnouniebiel’ on a piece of parchment, I flee at ²⁰ Here, ‘coriander’ (κολίανδρον) can refer to either of two plants in the parsley family, one of whose aromatic seeds is used to flavour pastries; the magical use is found in Pliny, Nat. Hist., 20:82.

²¹ In place of ‘Ieropa’, Conybeare has ‘Ieropaël’.

²² Conybeare has a considerably longer text for this verse: The eighteenth said, “I am called Buldumêch. I separate wife from husband and bring about a grudge between them. If anyone write down the names of your sires, Solomon, on paper and place it in the ante-chamber of his house, I retreat thence. And the legend written shall be as follows, “The God of Abram, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob commands thee – retire from this house in peace.” And I at once retire.”

²³ The name, ‘Mardero’, may combine a rare word for ‘hand’ and ‘to skin’, with reference to the hand of the Virgin.

²⁴ Conybeare inverts the order of vv. 23 & 24. ‘Rhyx’ (Ῥὺξ) may be a variant form of ‘Ruax’ (Ῥύαξ, cf. v. 4); ‘Nathoth’ could be the moon-god, Thoth, found in old Egyptian decan lists.

If someone invokes me in pure wine and gives it to the sufferer, I flee at once.” ³² The twenty-²⁵ On ‘Rhyx’, see #24. In place of ‘shortness of breath’, Duling has ‘the croup’.

²⁶ Conybeare’s translation lacks this verse.

²⁷ For the required inscription, Conybeare has ‘Iathôth, Uruêl, Nephthada’ and adds that it should be fastened round the loins.

²⁸ Conybeare interprets differently: The twenty-fourth said, “I am called Akton. I cause ribs and lumbar muscles to ache. If one engraves on copper material, taken from a ship that has missed its anchorage, this, “Marmaraôth, Sabaôth, pursue Akton,” and fastens it round the loin, I at once retreat.”

²⁹ ‘Arara, Arare’ is mentioned in the Greek Magical Papyri (19a:48); it could be a variation of the decan, ‘Aroi Aroi’.

³⁰ Conybeare reads: The twenty-sixth said, “I am called Enenuth. I steal away men’s minds, and change their hearts, and make a man toothless (?). If one writes, “Allazoôl, pursue Enenuth,” and ties the paper round him, I at once retreat.”

³¹ The meaning of the word translated ‘flux’ is uncertain; Duling has ‘diarrhoea’ and Conybeare has ‘I make men consumptive’.

³² Some MSS (such as that used by Conybeare) have ‘Harpax’ in place of ‘Hapax’.

³³ McGown's text has 'nineteenth' (ἔννατος καὶ δέκατος – literally, 'nine and tenth') in place of 'twenty-ninth' – the translation emends accordingly.

³⁴ For cherubim and seraphim on a protective amulet, see 18:15.

³⁵ On 'Rhyx', see #24.

³⁶ The name, 'Rhyx Ichthyon', seems more appropriate to the demon of v. 35.

³⁷ The translation, 'in a pile', is not clear; βοτρυδὸν means 'in clusters'; perhaps ἀναχωρίς was originally ἀναχωσίς, ('raising an embankment').

³⁸ In place of 'the first and second letters', Duling has 'the letters Alpha and Beta' and Conybeare has 'Alpha and Omega'; the 'letters' in the MSS are Greek numerals (note the ' attached to each).

³⁹ Both 'Solomon' and the 'seal of Solomon' are found on 'much-suffering eye' amulets.

Rhyx Phthineoth. I cast the evil eye on every man, but I am thwarted by the much-suffering eye when engraved.”

⁴⁰ The thirty-sixth said, “I am called Rhyx Mianeth. I bring ruin on the body; I lay houses waste; I consume flesh. If one writes the following on the threshold of his house, ‘Melpo Ardad Anaath’, I flee from the place.”

⁴¹ And upon hearing this, I, Solomon, glorified the God of heaven and earth and ordered them to bring water. ⁴² And then I prayed to God that the thirty-six demons who continually plague humanity go to the Temple of God.

⁴⁰ Note the different ending for this last demon: ‘I flee from the place’ rather than ‘I flee at once’.

⁴¹ At the end of the verse, Conybeare adds in the Temple of God.

⁴² Conybeare has a much longer text for this verse: And I furthermore prayed to the Lord God to cause the demons without, that hamper humanity, to be bound and made to approach the Temple of God. Some of these demons I condemned to do the heavy work of the construction of the Temple of God. Others I shut up in prisons. Others I ordered to wrestle with fire in (the making of) gold and silver, sitting down by lead and spoon. And to make ready places for the other demons in which they should be confined.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 19

¹ And I, Solomon, was honoured by all men under heaven; and I was building the Temple of God, and my kingdom was prospering. ² And all the kings came to me to see the Temple of God that I was building, and they brought gold and silver to me, and offered bronze, iron, lead, and timber for the construction of the temple. ³ In which also the Queen of Sheba, the charming queen of the South, possessed of great wisdom, came and bowed down before me.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 19

- ¹ Conybeare has a longer text: And I, Solomon, had much quiet in all the earth, and spent my life in profound peace, honoured by all men and by all under heaven. And I built the entire Temple of the Lord God. And my kingdom was prosperous, and my army was with me. And for the rest the city of Jerusalem had repose, rejoicing and delighted.
- ² Conybeare has: And all the kings of the earth came to me from the ends of the earth to behold the Temple that I built to the Lord God. And having heard of the wisdom given to me, they did homage to me in the Temple, bringing gold and silver and precious stones, many and divers, and bronze, and iron, and lead, and cedar logs. And woods decay not they brought me, for the equipment of the Temple of God.
- ³ The introduction of the Queen of Sheba at this point seems strange; moreover, her admiration for the Temple in Ch. 21 is unrelated to the story of the old man. The MS that Conybeare used appears to make the connection in Ch. 21 by means of Solomon's wisdom, e.g. by including her amazement at the story; at this point in, that MS adds, "... to the earth; and, because she had heard of my wisdom, she glorified the God of Israel; in these things also she tested all my wisdom by examination, so much did I instruct her according to the wisdom given to me. And all the sons of Israel glorified God."

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 20

¹ And behold, an aged man, one of the artisans, threw himself down before me, saying, "King Solomon, son of David, have pity on me, an old man." And I said to him, "Tell me, old man, what you want." ² And he said, "I beg you king, I have an only son, and every day he does very violent things to me, hitting me in the face and head and threatening to murder me. So, I have come to you to avenge me." ³ And, hearing this, I ordered that his son be brought to me. When he came, I said to him, "Is this the truth about you?" ⁴ And he said, "I must have been out of my mind to frighten my father the way I have, my king. Be kind to me, O king, for such irregular behaviour makes a sorry tale." ⁵ So, I, Solomon, hearing this from the youth, exhorted the old man to reconsider. But he would not but said, "Let him be put to death." ⁶ Then, seeing the demon Ornias laughing, I was very angry that he would laugh in my presence. Dismissing the young man, I ordered Ornias to come, and I said to him, "Cursed one, did you laugh

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 20

¹ The phrase, 'son of David, have pity on me' (υἱὸς Δαυεὶδ, ἐλέησόν με) recalls the cry of Bartimaeus in Mk 10:47–48.

² In place of 'murder me', Duling has 'send me to a terrible death'.

³ For Solomon's question, Duling has, "Do you admit to this?"

⁴ Literally translated, the youth's reply opens, "I have been full mad to make my father quake through my hand."

⁵ In place of 'reconsider', Whittaker has 'think it over' and Conybeare has 'reflect on the matter'.

⁶ Conybeare has a longer text for this verse: And, as the old man would not yield, I was about to pronounce sentence on the youth, when I saw Ornias the demon laughing. I was very angry at the demon's laughing in my presence; and I ordered my men to remove the other parties, and bring forward Ornias before my tribunal. And when he was brought before me, I said to him, "Accursed one, why did you look at me and laugh?"

at me?" ⁷ He said, "I beg you, King; I did not laugh because of you, but because of the wretched old man and the miserable young man, his son; for, after three days he will die; and behold, the old wants to put him to a painful death." ⁸ And I said, "Is it truly so?" The demon said, "Yes, O King." ⁹ And I ordered the spirit to withdraw and the old man and his son to come forward, and I commanded them become friends. ¹⁰ And I said to the old man, "Bring your son here to me in three days." So, they bowed down and departed. ¹¹ And I again called Ornias to me and said to him, "Tell me how you know that after three days the young man will die." ¹² He said, "We demons ascend to the firmament of the heavens and fly amid the stars, and we hear the decrees issuing from God concerning the lives of men, ¹³ and so we come and, whether by force of influence, or by fire, or by the sword, or by a mishap, we disguise ourselves and destroy." ¹⁴ And I asked him, "Tell me, then, how you are able to ascend into heaven, being demons." ¹⁵ And he said to me, "Whatever

⁷ Duling ends, "the old man has the intent of doing away with him in an evil manner."

⁸ Conybeare has a longer text: But I, Solomon, having heard this, said to the demon, "Is that true what you speak?" And he answered, "It is true, O king."

⁹ At the end of the verse, Conybeare adds 'and I supplied them with food'.

¹⁰ Conybeare extends Solomon's speech by adding 'and I will attend to him'.

¹¹ Whittaker ends, "that in three days the young man will be dead."

¹² Another possible reading for 'lives' is 'souls'.

¹³ Duling reads, "The rest of the time we come and, being transformed, cause destruction, whether by domination, or by fire, or by sword, or by chance."

¹⁴ At the start of the verse, Conybeare adds has a longer text: I, therefore, having heard this, glorified the Lord God, and again I questioned...

¹⁵ The 'principalities and powers and authorities' are three 'ranks' of angels.

ἐν οὐρανῷ ἐπιτελοῦντα, οὕτως καὶ ἐπὶ τῆς γῆς, αἱ γὰρ ἀρχαὶ καὶ ἐξουσία καὶ δυνάμεις ἄνω ἵπτανται καὶ τῆς εἰσόδου τοῦ οὐρανοῦ ἀξιοῦνται. ¹⁶ ἡμεῖς δὲ οἱ δαίμονες ἀτονοῦμεν μὴ ἔχοντες βάσιν ἀναβάσεως ἢ ἀναπαύσεως, καὶ ἐκπίπτομεν ὥσπερ φύλλα ἀπὸ τῶν δένδρων καὶ δοκοῦσιν οἱ θεωροῦντες ἄνθρωποι ὅτι ἀστέρες εἰσὶν οἱ πίπτοντες ἀπὸ τοῦ οὐρανοῦ. ¹⁷ οὐχ οὕτως ἐστί, βασιλεῦ, ἀλλὰ πίπτομεν διὰ τὴν ἀσθένειαν ἡμῶν καὶ ἐν τῷ μηδαμόθεν ἔχειν ἀντίληψιν καταπίπτομεν ὡς ἀστραπαὶ ἐπὶ τὴν γῆν, καὶ πόλεις καταφλέγομεν καὶ ἀγροὺς ἐμπυρίζομεν. οἱ δὲ ἀστέρες τοῦ οὐρανοῦ τεθεμελιωμένοι εἰσὶν ἐν τῷ στερεώματι. ¹⁸ καὶ ταῦτα ἀκούσας ἐγὼ Σολομῶν ἐκέλευσα τὸν δαίμονα τηρεῖσθαι ἕως ἡμερῶν πέντε. ¹⁹ μετὰ δὲ τὰς πέντε ἡμέρας μετακαλεσάμενος τὸν γέροντα οὐκ ᾔθελεν ἔλθεῖν. εἶτα ἐλθὼν, εἶδα αὐτὸν τεθλιμμένον καὶ πενθοῦντα. ²⁰ καὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ· Ποῦ ἐστὶν ὁ υἱός σου, γέρον; ὁ δὲ ἔφη· Ἄπαις ἐγενόμην, ὦ βασιλεῦ, καὶ ἀνέλπιστος τάφῳ υἱοῦ παραφυλάττω. ²¹ ἐγὼ δὲ Σολομῶν ἀκούσας ταῦτα καὶ γνούς ὅτι ἀληθῆ εἰσι τὰ παρὰ τοῦ δαίμονος λαληθέντα μοι ἐδόξασα τὸν θεὸν τοῦ οὐρανοῦ καὶ τῆς γῆς.

is done in heaven, so also on earth; for, the principalities and powers and authorities fly above and are worthy of entering heaven. ¹⁶ But we, the spirits, lose our strength, having no foundation for ascent or rest; we fall down like leaves from the trees, and the men who are watching us think that the objects falling from the sky are stars. ¹⁷ It is not so, O king, but we fall because of our illness; and, when there is no understanding, we fall like lightning to the earth, and we burn cities and set fields ablaze. But the stars of heaven are established in the firmament.” ¹⁸ And, hearing this, I, Solomon, ordered the demon to be kept in custody for five days. ¹⁹ Five days later, I sent for the elder, but he would not come. Then, when he did come, I saw him distressed and mourning. ²⁰ And I said to him, “Where is your son, old man?” But he replied, “I have been left childless, O King; and, without hope, I keep watch over my son’s grave.” ²¹ But I, Solomon, having heard these things and realized that what the demon had spoken to me was true, glorified the God of heaven and earth.

¹⁶ Conybeare has a similar (though shorter) text for this verse: And as having no ground (basis) on which to alight and rest, we lose strength and fall off like leaves from trees. And men seeing us imagine that the stars are falling from heaven.

¹⁷ In place of ‘are established’, Duling has ‘have their foundations laid’.

¹⁸ For this verse, the text of Conybeare’s translation is essentially the same as that presented here.

¹⁹ Conybeare ends, “in grief and with black face.”

²⁰ At the end of the verse, Conybeare adds, “For, it is already two days that he is dead.”

²¹ After ‘demon’, Conybeare adds the name (‘Ornias’).

¹ And when Sheba, the Queen of the south, saw the temple being built, she marvelled and gave ten thousand shekels of bronze. ² And she entered the temple and saw the altar, and the cherubim and seraphim overshadowing the mercy seat, and the two hundred stones of the lamps flashing with various colours – lamps of emerald, hyacinth, and sapphire. ³ And she saw the vessels of silver, bronze, and gold, and the bases of the columns, interwoven with bronze chainwork; she also saw the bronze Sea, with its rim, and the thirty-six bulls. ⁴ And they were all working in the temple of God ... for a salary of a talent of gold each, except for the demons.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 21

- ¹ In place of 'ten thousand shekels of bronze', Conybeare has 'a siklos of gold and one hundred myriads of silver and choice bronze'.
² Cf. 1K 7:48-50.
³ Conybeare ends, "And she saw the bases of the pillars of the Temple of the Lord."
⁴ There is a lacuna in the text, indicated by the ellipses: Did the non-demonic workers get paid one talent?

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 22

¹ Then King Adarces of Arabia sent a letter, saying the following:

King Adarces of Arabia, to King Solomon, rejoice!
Behold, we have heard of the wisdom that is given you, and that as a man the Lord has given you understanding of all spirits of the air, and of the earth, and of the underworld. ² There is a spirit in Arabia; for, at dawn, a strong wind comes until the third hour, and its breath is terrible and kills both men and beasts, and no breath can stand against the demon.
³ Therefore, I beg you – since the spirit is like the wind – to devise a plan according to the wisdom given to you by the Lord your God, and to deign to send a man capable of capturing it. ⁴ And behold, we shall be yours – I, and all my people, and all my land – and all Arabia shall be at peace, if you bring about this deliverance for us. ⁵ Therefore, we beg you: do not disregard our supplication, and remain our Lord forevermore. May my Lord always be in good health.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 22

- ¹ Conybeare has a rather longer introduction: And it came to pass, which I was in my kingdom, the King of the Arabians, Adarces, sent me a letter, and the writing of the letter was written as follows:
- ² A more literal translation of ‘at dawn’ is ‘in the east’.
- ³ Cf. Jub 2:2, 1En 60:12.
- ⁴ The literal translation of ‘deliverance’, here following Whittaker, is ‘vengeance’.
- ⁵ Duling ends the letter with ‘Farewell my lord, as ever’ and Whittaker has ‘May my lord fare well always, continually’.

⁶ ἐγὼ δὲ Σολομῶν ἀναγνοὺς τὴν ἐπιστολὴν ταύτην καὶ πτύξας ἀπέδωκα τῷ δούλῳ μου εἰπὼν αὐτῷ· Μετὰ ἑπτὰ ἡμέρας ὑπομνήσεις μοι τὴν ἐπιστολὴν ταύτην. ⁷ καὶ ἦν Ἱερουσαλὴμ ὠκοδομωμένη καὶ ὁ ναὸς συνεπληροῦντο. καὶ ἦν λίθος ἀκρογωνιαίος μέγας ὃν ἐβουλόμην θεῖναι εἰς κεφαλὴν γωνίας τῆς πληρώσεως τοῦ ναοῦ τοῦ θεοῦ. ⁸ καὶ πάντες οἱ τεχνῖται καὶ πάντες οἱ δαίμονες οἱ συννυπουργοῦντες ἦλθον ἐπὶ τὸ αὐτὸ ἀγαγεῖν τὸν λίθον καὶ θεῖναι εἰς τὸ πτερύγιον τοῦ ναοῦ καὶ οὐκ ἴσχυσαν σαλεῦσαι αὐτόν. ⁹ μετὰ δὲ τὰς ἑπτὰ ἡμέρας μνησθεὶς ἐγὼ τῆς ἐπιστολῆς τοῦ βασιλέως Ἀράβων ἐκέλευσα τὸ παιδάρίόν μου καὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ· Ἐπίσασον τὴν κάμηλόν σου καὶ λάβε ἄσκον καὶ τὴν σφραγίδα ταύτην, ¹⁰ καὶ ἄπελθε εἰς Ἀραβίας εἰς τὸν τόπον ἐν ᾧ τὸ πονηρὸν πνεῦμα πνέει, καὶ κρατήσας τὸν ἄσκον καὶ τὸ δακτυλίδιον ἔμπροσθεν τοῦ σώματος τοῦ ἄσκοῦ. ¹¹ καὶ ἐν τῷ ἐμπνευσθῆναι τὸν ἄσκον εὐρήσεις ὅτι ὁ δαίμων ἐστὶν ὁ ἐκεῖσε ἐμπνέων. τότε σπουδαίως μετὰ βίας δῆσον τὸν ἄσκον καὶ σφραγίσας τὸ δακτυλίδιον ἐπίσασον ἐπὶ τὴν κάμηλον καὶ κόμισον αὐτὸν ἐνθάδε, καὶ ἄπελθε ὑγιαίνων.

⁶ And I, Solomon, having read this letter and folded it up, handed it to my servant, saying to him, "In seven days, remind me of this letter." ⁷ And Jerusalem was being built, and the temple was nearing completion. And there was a great cornerstone, which I wished to place at the head of the corner, completing the Temple of God. ⁸ And all the craftsmen and all the cooperating demons came together to move the stone and place it on the pinnacle of the temple, but they were unable to lift it. ⁹ After seven days, remembering the letter from the King of the Arabs, I called my young servant and said to him, "Load up your camel and take a wineskin and this seal, ¹⁰ and go to Arabia, to the place where the evil spirit breathes, and take hold of the wineskin and place the ring in front of the neck of the wineskin. ¹¹ And, when the wineskin is inflated, you will find that the demon is the one who is filling it. Then, with great force, tie the wineskin, and seal it with the ring, and put it on the camel, and bring the camel here. Go now and fare well."

⁶ In place of 'my servant', Conybeare has 'my people'.

⁷ Cf. Ps 118:22, Is 28:16, Mk 12:10, Mt 21:42, Lk 20:17ff, Ac 4:11, 1P 2:6-8.

⁸ At the end of this verse, Conybeare adds: ...and lay it upon the corner allotted to it. For, that stone was exceedingly great and useful for the corner of the Temple.

⁹ Whittaker has the text from 'Load up your camel' as part of v. 10.

¹⁰ In place of 'neck', Whittaker has 'mouth'.

¹¹ Before the departing blessing, Conybeare adds: And if on the way it offers you gold or silver or treasure in return for letting it go, see that you are not persuaded. But arrange without using oath to release it. And then if it points out to the places where are gold or silver, mark the places and seal them with this seal. And bring the demon to me.

¹² τότε ὁ παῖς κατὰ τὰ ἐνταλθέντα ἐποίησε καὶ ἐπορεύθη εἰς Ἀραβίαν. καὶ οἱ ἄνθρωποι τοῦ τόπου ἐκείνου ἠπίστουν εἰ ἄρα δυνήσεται τὸ πονηρὸν πνεῦμα συλλαβέσθαι. ¹³ καὶ ὄρθρου ἀναστὰς ὁ οἰκέτης ἔστη κατενώπιον τοῦ πνεύματος τῆς πνοῆς καὶ ἔθηκε τὸν ἄσκον ἐπὶ τὸ ἔδαφος, ἐπέθηκε δὲ καὶ τὸ δακτυλίδιον. καὶ εἰσῆλθεν εἰς τὸν ἄσκον καὶ ἐπνευμάτωσεν αὐτόν. ¹⁴ ὁ δὲ παῖς σταθεὶς ἔσφιγξε τὸν ἄσκον ἐπὶ τῷ στόματι ἐν ὀνόματι κυρίου Σαβαώθ καὶ ἔμεινεν ὁ δαίμων ἔσθθεν εἰς τὸν ἄσκον. ¹⁵ ἔμεινε δὲ καὶ ὁ παῖς εἰς ἀπόδειξιν ἡμέρας τρεῖς, καὶ οὐκέτι ἔπνευσε τὸ πνεῦμα, καὶ ἐπέγνωσαν οἱ Ἀραβες ὅτι ἀσφαλῶς συνέκλεισε τὸ πνεῦμα. ¹⁶ τότε ἐπέσαξε τὸν ἄσκον εἰς τὴν κάμηλον. προσέπεμπον δὲ οἱ Ἀραβες τὸν παῖδα μετὰ δώρων καὶ τιμῶν εὐφημοῦντες τὸν θεόν, ἔμειναν γὰρ ἐν εἰρήνῃ. εἰσήγαγε δὲ τὸ πνεῦμα ὁ παῖς καὶ ἔθηκεν αὐτὸ εἰς κεφαλὴν τοῦ ναοῦ. ¹⁷ τῇ δὲ ἐπαύριον εἰσῆλθον ἐγὼ Σολομῶν εἰς τὸν ναόν· καὶ ἤμην ἐν λύπῃ περὶ τοῦ λίθου τοῦ ἀκρογωνιαίου. καὶ ἀναστὰς ὁ ἄσκος καὶ περιπατήσας βήματα ἑπτὰ ἔστη τὸ στόμα καὶ προσεκύνησέ μοι. ¹⁸ καὶ θαυμάσας ἐγὼ

¹² Then the young man did as he had been instructed and went to Arabia. And the people of that place doubted whether the evil spirit could actually be captured. ¹³ And, rising at dawn, the servant stood before the spirit of the wind, placed the wineskin on the ground, and set the ring on it. Then it entered the wineskin and inflated it. ¹⁴ And the young man stood and sealed the wineskin over the mouth in the name of the Lord of hosts, and the demon remained inside the wineskin. ¹⁵ The youth remained for three days as surety, and the spirit did not breathe again; the Arabs realized that the spirit had indeed departed. ¹⁶ Then he loaded the wineskin onto the camel. The Arabs presented the boy with gifts and honours, praising God; for, they remained in peace. Then the boy brought in the spirit and placed it at in front of the Temple. ¹⁷ The next day, I, Solomon, went into the Temple, being worried about the cornerstone. And the wineskin stood up, walked seven paces, then fell on its mouth and did homage to me. ¹⁸ I was amazed that,

¹² For this verse, Conybeare reads: Then the youth did as was bidden him. And he ordered his camel, and laid on it a flask, and set off into Arabia. And the men of that region would not believe that he would be able to catch the evil spirit.

¹³ The first pronoun in the last sentence refers to the demon.

¹⁴ Conybeare has: And the demon blew through the middle of the finger-ring into the mouth of the flask, and going in blew out the flask. But the man promptly stood up to it and drew tight with his hand the mouth of the flask, in the name of the Lord God of Sabaoth. And the demon remained within the flask.

¹⁵ A more literal reading of 'surety' is 'a demonstration'.

¹⁶ In place of 'in front of', Whittaker has 'on top of'; literally translated, the Greek has 'at the head of'.

¹⁷ Conybeare has: And, on the next day, I King Solomon, went into the Temple of God and sat in deep distress about the stone of the end of the corner. And when I entered the Temple, the flask stood up and walked around some seven steps and then fell on its mouth and did homage to me.

¹⁸ For this verse, Conybeare's translation is essentially the same.

ὅτι μετὰ τοῦ ἀσκοῦ δυνάμεις ἔσχε καὶ περιεπάτησεν, ἐκέλευσα αὐτὸ ἀναστῆναι. καὶ ἀνέστη ὁ ἀσκὸς καὶ ἔστη ἐν τοῖς ποσὶν πεφυσιωμένος. ¹⁹ καὶ ἐπηρώτησα αὐτὸν λέγων· Σὺ τίς εἶ; λέγει ἔσω τὸ πνεῦμα· Ἐγὼ εἰμι δαίμων λεγόμενος Ἐφιππᾶς, ὁ ἐν τῇ Ἀραβίᾳ. ²⁰ καὶ εἶπον αὐτῷ· Ποίῳ ἀγγέλῳ καταργεῖσαι; ὁ δὲ λέγει· Τῷ διὰ παρθένου μέλλοντι γεννηθῆναι ἐπειδὴ αὐτὸν προσκυνοῦσι ἄγγελοι, καὶ ὑπὸ Ἰουδαίων μέλλοντι σταυρωθῆναι.

though he was trapped in the flask, he had the power to walk; and I ordered him to get up. The flask arose, standing up, inflated, on its feet. ¹⁹ Then I questioned him, saying, “Who are you?” The spirit inside said, “I am a demon called Ehippas, and I live in Arabia.” ²⁰ I said to him, “By what angel are you thwarted?” He said, “By the one who is going to be born from a virgin and be crucified by the Jews.”

¹⁹ At the end of the verse, Conybeare adds: And I said to him, “Is this your name?” And he answered, “Yes; wherever I will, I alight and set fire and do to death.”

²⁰ Conybeare has a longer text: And I said to him, “By what angel are you frustrated?” And he answered, “By the only ruling God, that has authority over me even to be heard. He that is to be born of a virgin and crucified by the Jews on a cross. Whom the angels and archangels worship. He frustrates me, and enfeebles me of my great strength, which has been given me by my father the devil.”

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 23

¹ Then I said to him, "What can you do for me?" He said, "I can move mountains, transport houses, and overthrow kings." ² I said to him, "If you can, lift this stone to the pinnacle of the corner of the Temple." But he responded, "I will raise not only this stone, King; but, with the aid of the demon in the Red Sea, the pillar of air in the Red Sea, and you shall set it up where you wish." ³ And, saying this, he went in underneath the stone, lifted it, mounted the steps carrying the stone, and put it in the end of the entrance of the Temple. ⁴ I, Solomon, said in elation, "Truly, the Scripture has been fulfilled that says: It was the stone rejected by the builders that became the keystone – and so forth."

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 23

- ¹ To the demon's reply, Conybeare adds, "I wither trees and make their leaves to fall off."
- ² The 'pillar of air' is explained in 24:3–5. McCown suggests that the pillar of cloud in the OT is transferred to the heavens and he agrees with MR James that the pillar is the Milky Way.
- ³ Conybeare has a more verbose version of this verse: Saying this, I laid stress on him, and the flask became as if depleted of air. And I placed it under the stone, and (the spirit) girded himself up, and lifted it up top of the flask. And the flask went up the steps, carrying the stone, and laid it down at the end of the entrance of the Temple.
- ⁴ At the end of the verse, Conybeare adds: For, this it is not mine to grant, but God's, that the demon should be strong enough to lift up so great a stone and deposit it in the place I wished.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 24

¹ And again, I said to him, "Go, bring me the pillar you mentioned in the Red Sea." And Ephippas went and brought the demon and the pillar, both carrying it from Arabia. ² But I, realizing that these two spirits could shake the entire world in a single moment, outwitted them by sealing the ring on both sides and said, "Guard it carefully." ³ And they have remained supporting the pillar in mid-air to this day, as proof of the wisdom granted to me. ⁴ And the enormous pillar hung suspended in the air, borne by spirits; and, from below, the spirits appeared to be supporting it just like air. ⁵ And while we were looking, the foundation of the pillar was slight askew, and it remains to this day.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 24

¹ Cf. 6:3-5, 12:4, 22:19.

² In place of 'in a single moment' (here following Whittaker), Duling has 'with one tip of the scales'.

³ Whittaker has 'as a demonstration' in place of 'as proof'.

⁴ Unusually, Conybeare has a shorter text for this verse: And there the pillar was hanging of enormous size, in mid-air, supported by the winds.

⁵ Duling has 'somewhat oblique' in place of 'slightly askew', here following Whittaker.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 25

¹ And I asked the other demon that came up from the sea with the pillar, "Who are you, and what is your name, and what is your work? For, I have heard much about you." ² And the demon said, "I, King Solomon, am called Abezethibou; and I once sat in the first heaven, whose name is Ameluth. ³ I, then, am a fierce spirit and winged and with a single wing, plotting against every spirit under heaven. I was present when Moses went in before Pharaoh, king of Egypt, and I hardened his heart. ⁴ I am he whom Jannes and Jambres invoked challenging Moses in Egypt. I am he who fought against Moses with wonders with signs." ⁵ Then I said to him, "How did you find yourself in the Red Sea?" And he said, "When the sons of Israel came out, I hardened Pharaoh's heart, and I made his heart strong, and the hearts of his servants. ⁶ And I made them chase the children of Israel, and Pharaoh and all the Egyptians followed them. Then I stayed there, and we followed, and we all came into the Red Sea. ⁷ And it came to pass, when the sons of Israel

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 25

- ¹ In place of 'work', Duling has 'activity' and Whittaker has 'function'.
- ² The translations vary on the spelling of 'Ameluth' – Duling has 'Amelouth' and Conybeare has 'Ameleouth'.
- ³ For vv. 3–4, the translation follows Conybeare; there is little variation between the MSS.
- ⁴ Jewish tradition named the leaders of the Egyptian magicians of Ex 7:11–13, 'Jannes and Jambres', and said they were disciples (or sons) of Balaam (Nb 22–24).
- ⁵ Cf. Ex 14:8ff.
- ⁶ Whittaker start this verse earlier, at 'When the sons of Israel'.
- ⁷ Conybeare extends the ending: But, when Ephippas came, being sent by you, shut up in the vessel of a flask, he fetched me up to you.

ἐπαναστραφέν τὸ ὕδωρ ἐκάλυψε πᾶσαν τὴν παρεμβολὴν τῶν Αἰγυπτίων· τότε εὐρέθην ἐγὼ ἐκεῖ καὶ συνεκαλύφθην ἐν τῷ ὕδατι καὶ ἔμεινα ἐν τῇ θαλάσῃ τηρούμενος ὑποκάτω τοῦ κίονος μέχρι ἀνῆλθεν Ἐφιππᾶς. ⁸ καὶ ἐγὼ δὲ Σολομῶν ὥρκισα αὐτὸν βαστάζειν τὸν κίονα ἕως τῆς συντελείας. ⁹ καὶ σὺν θεῷ ἐκόσμησα τὸν ναὸν αὐτοῦ ἐν πάσῃ εὐπρεπείᾳ. καὶ ἤμην χαίρων καὶ δοξάζων αὐτόν.

had passed over, the waters returned and covered the whole Egyptian army: then I was found there, and was covered in the waters, and remained in the sea, kept under the pillar, until Ehippas came.” ⁸ And I, Solomon, commanded him to support the pillar until the end. ⁹ And with God’s help, I adorned his temple with all seemliness. And I continued to rejoice and praise him.

⁸ Conybeare has a considerably longer text for this verse: I, therefore, Solomon, having heard this, glorified God and adjured the demons not to disobey me, but to remain supporting the pillar. And they both swore, saying, “The Lord your God lives, we will not let go this pillar until the world’s end. But on whatever day this stone falls, then shall be the end of the world.”

⁹ For the last sentence, Conybeare reads: And I was glad in spirit in my kingdom, and there was peace in my days.

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 26

¹ Now, I took wives without number from all lands and kingdoms. And I went to the king of the Jebusites, and saw a woman in their kingdom, and I loved her exceedingly, and I desired to have her among my wives. ² And I said to their priests, "Give me this Shunammite woman; for, I love her dearly." And they said to me, "If you love our daughter, worship our gods – the great Raphan and Moloch – and take her." ³ But I refused to worship. Instead, I said to them, "I do not worship a strange god." ⁴ But they pressured the maiden, saying, "If you manage to enter Solomon's kingdom, say to him: I will not lie with you unless you become like my people; and take five locusts and slaughter them in the name of Raphan and Moloch." ⁵ But I, because I loved the daughter as a beautiful woman, and because I was foolish, I did not care for the blood of the locusts, but I took them in my hands and sacrificed them to the idols in

TESTAMENT OF SOLOMON 26

- ¹ Duling ends, "and I fell madly in love with her and wanted her to be a wife in my harem."
² Perhaps the reference is to the beautiful Shunammite woman brought to David in his old age (1K 1:1–4, 15, 2:17–22); her name was Abishag, and Solomon executed Adonijah for treason when he wanted her (1K 2:13–25). McCown suggests its derivation from the 'maid of Shulam in Sg 6:13.
³ At the end of this verse, Conybeare adds a fragmented text: But they said, "... by our fathers."
⁴ Conybeare has a longer (and rather different) text: And, when I answered that I would on no account worship strange gods, they told the maiden not to sleep with me until I complied and sacrificed to the gods. I then was moved, but crafty Eros brought and laid by her for me five grasshoppers, saying, "Take these grasshoppers, and crush them together in the name of the god Moloch; and then will I sleep with you."
⁵ For this verse, Conybeare has a shorter (but very different) text: And this I actually did. And at once the Spirit of God departed from me, and I became weak as well as foolish in my words.

⁹ ἐγὼ οὖν Σολομῶν υἱὸς Δαυεὶδ υἱοῦ Ἰεσσαὶ ἔγραψα τὴν διαθήκην μου καὶ ἐσφράγισα αὐτὴν τῷ δακτυλιδίῳ τοῦ θεοῦ. καὶ ἀπέθανον ἐν τῇ βασιλείᾳ μου καὶ προσετέθη μετὰ τῶν πατέρων μου ἐν εἰρήνῃ ἐν Ἱερουσαλήμ. καὶ ἐπληρώθη ὁ ναὸς κυρίου τοῦ θεοῦ οὗ ὑπὸ θρόνου αὐτοῦ ποταμὸς ἔλκει· ὧ παρεισθήκεισαν μυριάδες ἀγγέλων καὶ χιλιάδες ἀρχαγγέλων καὶ χερουβὶμ ἐπικράζοντα σεραφὶμ κεκραγότες καὶ λέγοντες· Ἅγιος, ἅγιος, ἅγιος κύριος σαβαὼθ καὶ εὐλογητὸς εἶ εἰς τοὺς αἰῶνας τῶν αἰώνων· ἀμήν. ¹⁰ δόξα σοι, ὁ θεός μου, καὶ κύριος, δόξα σοι σὺν τῇ ὑπερευκλεεῖ θεοτόκῳ καὶ τῷ τιμίῳ προδρόμῳ καὶ πάντας ἀγίους, δόξα σοι.

the name of Raphan and Molech. And I took the virgin into the house of my kingdom. ⁶ And the Spirit of God departed from me; and, from that day forth, my words became like nonsense; and she forced me to build temples to idols.

⁷ I then, wretch that I am, followed her advice, and the glory of God quite departed from me; and my spirit was darkened, and I became the sport of idols and demons. ⁸ So, I have written down this my testament, so you who hear it may pray and heed the final things rather than the first, that they may find perfect grace unto the ages; Amen.

⁹ I, Solomon, son of David, son of Jesse, wrote my testament and sealed it with the ring of God. And I died in my kingdom and was gathered to my fathers in peace in Jerusalem. And the Temple of the Lord God was filled, and a river flowed under his throne; and there stood before him ten thousand angels and thousands of archangels and cherubim, shouting above the seraphim, and saying, "Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord of Hosts; and blessed are you for ever and ever. Amen." ¹⁰ Glory to you, my God and Lord; glory to you, with the supremely glorious Theotokos, the honoured Forerunner, and all the saints; glory to you.

⁶ At the end of the verse, Conybeare adds, "to Baal, and to Rapha, and to Moloch, and to the other idols."

⁷ For this verse, the translation follows that of Conybeare.

⁸ Both Whittaker and Conybeare end the book at this verse. Duling adds a footnote that McGown later found another MS that included the text of vv. 9–10 (which he includes in a footnote).

⁹ In place of 'Lord of Hosts', Duling has (in a footnote – see #8) 'Lord Sabaōth' (κύριος σαβαὼθ).

¹⁰ In place of 'Theotokos', Duling (in a footnote) has 'God-bearer' (a literal translation of the name, commonly in Greek Orthodox liturgy).
