

The Coptic New Testament

The Coptic (Sahidic) text for the New Testament in this collection is that of George W. Horner, published in 1911–1924; the text was gleaned from the STEPBible website, which has presented the text of Crosswire’s CopSahHorner J-SWORD module, which is in the public domain.

The following adjustments have been applied (in the collection) to the text:

- The terminal full stops has been removed from the ‘title’ (the end of the book) of Matthew’s Gospel, to be consistent with those of the other Gospels.
- The opening word of Mt 27:11 (ⲓϥ) has been replaced with ⲓⲥ, as this is almost certainly what is intended (the standard Coptic abbreviation for the name, ‘Jesus’ – the word occurs nowhere else without the bar).
- A space has been added between ⲛⲕⲁⲧⲁ and ⲗⲟⲅⲕⲁϥ in the ‘title’ of Luke’s Gospel.
- In the opening of Acts 21:1, the bar has been restored to the initial ⲛ and removed from the verse number.
- We have removed the title (ⲧⲉⲡⲣⲟϥ ⲛⲁⲗⲁⲧⲁϥ) from the beginning of Ga 1:1 – this seems to be an error, as the title is given (as for most books) at the end of the text.
- We have added (explicit) indicators to show that the verses, Jn 7:53–8:11, are not present in the text.
- We have removed the number, 1234455766, from the middle of Jn 20:15 – this seems entirely spurious.
