ሥርዓተ፡ጽዮን፡ ※ The Order of Zion

Introduction

The Order of Zion (Sirate Tsion) is the text also known as the Canons of the Apostles after the Ascension. It opens with a narrative of the Ascension and Pentecost and of the regions to which each apostle was sent, sets out thirty statutes on worship and the life of the church (which way to face in prayer, which days to keep, what is read and in what order), and closes with a second narrative. The title, The Order of Zion, is not used by the text itself, and Alessandro Bausi, the modern editor of the Ethiopic Sinodos, does not record it among the traditional names. The Syriac tradition divides it into 27 ordinances and the Ethiopic and Arabic into 30; where the correspondence is known, it is noted herein.

The Ge'ez text presented here is that of Allesandro Bausi, from the TEI collection[§]; the English text is closely based on Breandan Lumpkin's translation.[¶] In the footnotes, translations of the Syriac text are also based on Lumpkin's translation, in an earlier publication.

Authorship and Dates

Within the Ethiopian Orthodox Tewahedo Church canon, the text is traditionally attributed to the Twelve Apostles; the prologue notes that it was compiled or recorded by Clement of Rome on their behalf. However, secular historians classify the work as a pseudo-apostolic church order, meaning it was composed by anonymous early Christian leaders who attributed the writing to the Apostles to establish authority for its liturgical and ecclesiastical regulations.

Sirate Tsion is identified by scholars as the Ge'ez version of the Canons after the Ascension; the broader collection of Christian pseudo-apostolic church orders from which it derives was composed primarily between the 3rd and 5th Centuries CE. The text was translated into Ge'ez and incorporated into the Book of Sinodos during the formal translation periods of the Ethiopian Church, likely between the 5th and 14th Centuries, with its current manuscript tradition solidifying in later mediaeval codices.

At the very end of the text, reference is made to the Greek work known as Batlesat (which equates to 'Didache'); however, we now know that the Didache has a considerably stronger correlation with the first section of The Book of Herald (Te'ezaz).

And God showed righteousness in all days, by victory and by word, manifestly; and he put the rebels to shame with an everlasting curse.[ii] And his disciples, after he rose from the dead, were scattered in the land of Galilee and the city of Nazareth, where he had commanded them. And, on the fortieth day after his resurrection, they gathered at the Mount of Olives in Jerusalem, and Christ was with them in their midst, while they did not know him. And he appeared to them on that day, and laid his hand on the head of each one of them, of his eleven disciples, and blessed them, and made them priests in place of the despised priests, the children of Israel.

ORDER 1

[i] Let their prayer be toward the east; for our Lord Jesus Christ said that God himself will come from heaven in the last days, like the lightning that goes out from the east and shines as far as the west. And by this we knew that his coming will be from the east.

ORDER 1

[i] The Syriac text reads: The holy Apostles appointed: be praying toward the east, because as the lightning shines from the east and is seen as far as the west, so shall be the coming of the Son of Man. By this let us know and consider that our Lord Christ will appear from the east, out of heaven.

CONCERNING THE CHRISTIAN SABBATH

[i] Let them assemble on every Sunday at the third hour for prayer, and for the reading of the books of the old covenant and of the new, and for the offering of the oblation; for on it the angel announced to Mary that she would conceive Christ, and on it he rose from the dead, and on it he will come down from heaven on the day of resurrection with his angels in great glory, and will sit with his holy disciples and judge the living and the dead.

ORDER 10

CONCERNING THE FAST OF PASCHA

[i] Let them fast 40 days yearly, as Moses and Elijah and the prophets fasted in the beginning, and as our Lord Jesus Christ undertook the like in his flesh; and he made it known that they should do it before his passion, and that they should remember the passion of Christ and his crucifixion and his death and his descent into the tomb. And, on the day of his resurrection, let them keep Pascha, and let them keep the feast at the completion of the fast, having fasted 40 days, the sabbaths and the Sunday excepted; and the day of Friday and the first sabbath, both of them, on the day he was crucified and buried; and the day of Sunday, his resurrection. And there is no fast after these days until the completion of 50 days.

ORDER 10

[i] This is 'Tradition 7' in the Syriac text, which reads: The holy Apostles appointed again: be fasting forty days before the passion of our Saviour, and then keep the day of his passion and the day of his resurrection; because our Lord also, the Lord of the feast, fasted forty days; and Moses and Elijah, who bore the figure of this mystery, themselves fasted forty days, and then appeared in glory. Throughout this order, the Ge'ez has '40' and '50' expressed as numerals (፵ & ፶).

ORDER 11

CONCERNING THE FEAST OF THE 40

[i] Let them keep the feast of the ascension of our Lord into heaven, after his resurrection, on the 40th day.

ORDER 11

[i] This is 'Tradition 8' in the Syriac text, which reads: The holy Apostles judged besides: at the end of the forty days following the resurrection of our Lord, make the commemoration of his Ascension to his Father.

ORDER 12

CONCERNING THE READING OF THE BOOKS

[i] Let them read the books upon a high seat in the church, from the Orit and the books of all the prophets and the accounts of the apostles. And after it let them read from the Gospel, for it is the completion of all the books; and let all the people hear it standing upon their feet, for it is the tidings of life and of salvation, and grace for all men; and it is fitting that they magnify it above all the books, and that men make petition to God while it is being read.

ORDER 12

[i] The Syriac text divides this Order into two parts, separating the Old and New Testaments.

CONCERNING THE ORDER OF APPOINTMENT

[i] Let him not be appointed over Christians, nor command them, who does not know the law and the order; but rather he who practises it, and who is good in his conduct, and forbearing in humility, and good in his ways. And if he alters this and does not do all that we have said, let him be removed from his office by force, and let them not receive his word nor his command, for he is not faithful in his ordering.

ORDER 13

[i] The Syriac text is shorter: The Apostles laid down again that he who does not know the faith of the church, and the orders and the laws set down in it, be neither ruler nor teacher; and that he who knows them and transgresses them minister no longer, because he is not sincere, but a liar in his ministry.

MORE CONCERNING APPOINTMENT

[i] Let them withhold office and the ministry of the church, and let him be judged among men, from everyone who dares a false oath and false testimony, and who gives offence against men, and who accuses them of what they have not done.

ORDER 14

[i] This is 'Tradition 12' in the Syriac text, which reads: The Apostles prescribed likewise that he who swears and lies and speaks false testimony, or goes to magicians and diviners and Chaldaean tricksters, and observes lots and nativities and all that those hold who know not God, be cast down from the ministry, and minister no more.

ORDER 16

[i] This is 'Tradition 13' in the Syriac text, which reads: The Apostles appointed also that if any doubts concerning the ministry, and does not hold it firm and settled, he shall minister no more; because the Lord of the ministry is not sure to him, and he deceives men — yet not God, before whom no deceits stand.

ORDER 18

[i] The Syriac text reads: The Apostles appointed again that he who loves the Jews, as Judas Iscariot loved them, or the heathen, who worship the creature in place of the Creator, shall not come in among them; and if he is among them, let them not leave him, but let him be separated from them, and let him not minister with them.

ORDER 19

[i] This is 'Tradition 16' in the Syriac text, which reads: The Apostles judged again that if any comes from among the Jews or from among the heathen and joins himself to them, or having joined himself turns back and goes again to the side where he formerly stood — and if he returns and comes to them a second time — he shall not be received again; but look upon him as belonging to that side in which he was of old, as men who know him.

ORDER 20

[i] Let them not make as chief, to command the church of God, one who does the work of this world. And let him not be joined to the business of the people save by the counsel of his colleagues who preceded him, who likewise set up prayer; and it is not fitting save by his counsel and theirs together, in what pleases God and what is fitting for the people, and his judgment right. And let there not be in his judging one who does ill to a part of them, nor one arrogant in overstepping rectitude; and him whose conduct is such, let him be separated. And let not the presbyter nor the deacon abandon the prayer he has begun, and let him not go out to another business; and he who does so, it is not possible for him to return to his former place.

ORDER 20

[i] This is ‘Tradition 17’ in the Syriac text, which reads: The Apostles appointed also that the ruler cannot, apart from those who minister with him, be the administrator of the things which belong to the church; but that it be ordered by the counsel of all, and that be done which is our Lord’s, and in which all consent and none dissent.

ORDER 22

CONCERNING THE ORDER OF PRAYER

[i] Let them multiply prayer by night and by day in the Psalter of David, and let them chant prayer in it; for he said, “I will bless the Lord at all times, and continually his praise is in my mouth.” And again he said, “Sweet to my throat is your speech, sweeter than honey and sugar to my mouth.” And, for this reason, it is fitting to read in sweet melody, for the magnifying of God and his praise, and the thanking of his grace, and petition to him, and doing well in all things for the sake of his name, awesome and holy. [ii] Again, it speaks of devotion, praise, thanksgiving, confession of sins, and petitions fitting for the faithful. They pray with it when they encounter tribulation, and sorrow, and distress, and they are saved from harm.

ORDER 22

[i] A much shorter version of this is ‘Tradition 19’ in the Syriac text, which reads: The Apostles appointed again that in the ministry of the church you say the praises of David daily, because of that which is written: I will bless the Lord at all times; and, his praise shall be in my mouth at all times; and, day and night I will meditate, and will speak, and will make my voice heard before you.

ORDER 23

CONCERNING THE NUMBER OF THE PRIESTS

[i] Let the ministers be seven, chosen from the people for the ministry of the house of the sanctuary: good and goodly, endowed with wisdom and knowledge, and fearers of God who know his order; for, they are the ones who speak concerning prayer. And let them consecrate the oblation, and dismiss the people in safety and peace; for they are truly the children of God, as was said in the holy Gospel. And let them be ministers of prophecy, not troubled with the work of the world, but let their work be its ministry, for the knowledge of his law.

ORDER 23

[i] At this point, the 'Traditions' in the Syriac text do not match those of the Ge'ez 'Orders'. For 'Tradition 20', the Syriac reads: The Apostles appointed again that those who are emptied of mammon, and who do not run after the gain of money, be the men chosen and brought forward to the ministry of the altar. The correspondence returns at Order 25.

[i] Let there be a chief commanding the people and reproving them by the cross; for, we command and do not bind without rectitude. And, if the priest oppresses them while they are innocent, let them appoint priests over him in rectitude; and, if they are unable, let them send him to the bishop, or to the archbishop, and let them set him right in rectitude, and let them not leave him to transgress against the sheep of Christ, bought with his precious blood. And let them not provoke them, lest they go out into blasphemy against God and denial of his holy name. And let the faithful be good, who endure injustice as is fitting, so God may avenge on their behalf. And let the appointed one not show partiality in judgment among the people; and let his judgment prevail. And, as for him who justifies the oppressor for what he gives him, and oppresses the innocent because of his weakness and his poverty – he becomes accursed and cursed, and let them reckon him as nothing other than a worshipper of idols. And let them withhold his office from him who does so; and let them rebuke him for his injustice; and let his episcopacy not make you afraid.

ORDER 24

[i] The last part of this canon vaguely resembles ‘Tradition 21’ in the Syriac text, which reads: The Apostles appointed again that the priest who binds rashly, without just cause, justly receive punishment; yet that he who has been bound receive the binding as one who is justly bound.

Let him not be in office, and let him not draw near, who exalts himself in his soul, and boasts over men, and sees his soul as greater than theirs, and as honoured and better, and looks upon the people of God with an eye of contempt. But he is contemptible before God, and shameful, who has no good memorial in his life nor mercy before God at his death, and is removed from his priesthood; concerning whom God said in the scripture, “I will turn the grace to another, away from those who exalt themselves.” [i]

[i] It is not clear which passage of scripture is being cited here; possibly, it is an adaptation of Mt 23:12, which reads: Anyone who exalts himself up will be humbled and anyone who humbles himself will be exalted.

[i] Let them appoint a chief of priests over the presbyters in the regions, who goes among them, visits them, commands them, and reproves them; and let them know that he has authority over them; and let him know their work; and it is fitting for them that they do his command – as Samuel the prophet, who went round in the districts of Jerusalem, and commanded them and reproved them.

ORDER 26

[i] In the Syriac text, this is 'Tradition 24'; it reads: The Apostles appointed likewise that there be visitors over the presbyters who are in the towns, and that the head of them all be known; for through his hand all are sought. For, Samuel went thus from place to place.

ORDER 27

CONCERNING THE KING

[i] Let the king's station be with the faithful at the time of prayer, before all the people; and let him stand with the elders and the appointed priests; and let him enter with them into the altar, and let his station be there; for, David the king, and the kings who are like him, precede all the people in prayer, and they enter the house of the sanctuary, and they have a station within.

ORDER 27

[i] In the Syriac text, this is 'Tradition 25'; it reads: The Apostles appointed again that to kings who shall believe in Christ there be power to go up and to stand before the altar together with the ruler of the church; because David also, and those who were like him, went up and stood before the altar.

ORDER 28

[i] Let the king not presume to act in the house of the sanctuary by his own will, but in the fear of God and in goodness, so that God may uphold his throne in righteousness, and lengthen his days, and give him as inheritance eternal spiritual grace, and not withhold from him sons who sit upon his throne for ever.

ORDER 28

[i] In the Syriac text, this is (possibly) 'Tradition 26'; it reads: The Apostles appointed again that no one presume to do anything by the power of the priesthood, which is impious and unlawful, but only what is just, and free from the fault of partiality.

PRIESTS

[i] Let not priests and the appointed presume beyond the work in which they were commanded, and let them not overstep the command beyond that for which they were given authority, that they should command and reprove. And they appointed them in what is fitting and right, and not in what finds sin and reproach, and becomes arrogance on him.

ORDER 30

CONCERNING THE OBLATION

[i] Let them bring up the bread that is made for the oblation on the altar on the day it was made, and let them not put it off until the morrow; and let them distribute it on its own day, and let them not leave it over for another day; for, it is not fitting.

And thus we have commanded you, that you do as God showed you after us.[ii]

ORDER 30

[i] In the Syriac text, this is 'Tradition 27' (the last); it reads: The Apostles appointed again that the bread of the oblation go up to the altar on the day on which it is baked, and not after some days have passed, which is not lawful.

[ii] The Syriac text has a longer colophon: Here end the canons established by the Holy Apostles for the ordering of the Holy Church. Here ends the first Synod of the Apostles, and likewise the second Synod.

And they had no toil over it, because they had help in that authority was given to them, and they understood the knowledge of God and did it; for they feared on behalf of those who followed them and believed by their hands, because of deceiving wolves, lest they come and tear them away from behind them; for there are men who liken themselves to the Apostles and come in the likeness of sheep, but they are not. And they called to one truth and one word, all of them one Spirit, which is the Holy Spirit, from one God, to whom we all bow down.

And the Apostles were sent and preached in him and called to him all the regions that were far from them. And all that the Apostles received from our Lord Jesus Christ, and the Apostles taught, they received and believed in him in every city and country and as far as the ends of all the world, while the power of God helped them, and they were strengthened; and his word did not lie, which said, “I am with you until the end of the world.” And along with this they were diligent in contending with the Jews out of the books of the prophets, and they contend with the sorcerers by the awesome sign which they do in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ.

for his sake, they say, “This tribulation which has found us makes intercession for us, because we too provoked to anger him who created us.”

And there was of them one whom they crucified, and one who was killed by the sword, enduring, and one whose goods were taken by violence many times, and one who was parted from his goods, his children, and his house; and, while they were under judgement and they tormented them, they endured by their own will until they died for the sake of faith in Christ.

And they multiplied and were increased, and their preaching and their calling did not diminish, until it spread into the four corners of the world.

And the Apostles did not ordain all this when they began to proclaim and call into the faith, but they were diligent that they might receive all men out of sin, apostasy, and idolatry, into uprightness and faith; and they commanded them concerning eating what is slaughtered to the gods, and what is strangled, and of blood, and what has been vowed to another god.

And, when those who believe in Christ multiplied, and there were among them preachers and heralds, and it was required that they should make statute and ordinance to recitify the law and fulfill the work, then the Apostles gave them this canon, called in the Greek tongue Batlesat, in which the Apostles of Christ, good, righteous, and pure leaders, agreed; and they commanded that they should do it. And judgement is due to him who transgresses it. And we too follow their footsteps.
